

Making Good Progress

Brick-layers have started building the south wall of the modern swimming pool that will be part of the junior high school that is being constructed on South Ingram. The construction work is proceeding "pretty close to schedule," according to Dale Bird, supervisor for the Bron Construction Co. of Kansas City, which is building the school. Most of the walls for the gymnasium were completed before starting work on the swimming pool wall, he said.

Fighting Stiffens

Border Clash Rages Between Viets, Reds

SAIGON (AP) — Cambodian and South Vietnamese troops battled Communist forces on three fronts in Cambodia Sunday and today.

In South Vietnam, North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces intensified their attacks in the central highlands and maintained their three-week-old siege of Fire Base 5, where fighting broke out 500 yards from the barbed wire perimeter.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong urged Communist forces in South Vietnam to step up the war. He told North Vietnam's new National Assembly that the U.S. program to train and strengthen the South Vietnamese war machine is failing. He said this has created "a very favorable opportunity for our countrymen and compatriots in the South to step up their military and political struggle."

In the Cambodian fighting, troops from the 9th North Vietnamese-Viet Cong Division launched new assaults in a downpour early today against Cambodian army bunkers around two hamlets in the Vihear Suor marshes 15 miles east of Phnom Penh. Fighting continued for more than eight hours, but there was no word of casualties or other details.

The battle for small patches of high ground which will remain above water during the current monsoon season is now in its third week. The area is part of an important North Vietnamese supply route and is the key to Phnom Penh's eastern defenses.

On a second front, 25 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, North Vietnamese attacks drove government troops from the devastated district town of Srang, on Highway 3. Srang has changed hands several times, and the Cambodians reoccupied it last week.

Seventy miles northeast of Phnom Penh near the border with South Vietnam, South Vietnamese infantrymen crashed into about 150 enemy troops near the town of Khek and reported 29 North Vietnamese killed with the help of U.S. air strikes. Five South Vietnamese were killed and 11 wounded, a communique said.

In South Vietnam's central highlands, South Vietnamese paratrooper reinforcements fought the North Vietnamese into the night Sunday at Fire Base 5, near the triborder juncture of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

Saigon headquarters said 24 North Vietnamese were killed in a 5½-hour fight, while South Vietnamese losses were one man killed and 21 wounded.

Bell Vote Favors Strike

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Joseph A. Beirne, president of the Communications Workers of America, announced today union members voted 205,431 to 82,009 in favor of a strike.

The announcement was made to a cheering crowd of 3,000 delegates during his keynote address to the union's annual convention in Kansas City.

Beirne said the union's executive board has been looking at the negotiating board results from every angle and it unanimously rejected the Bell System's position.

"As this vote was being taken," Beirne said, "we urged the industry management to seriously consider our sincere and strong views. We told them the executive board would not hesitate one second to reverse their vote if the system laid on the table a proposal that took into account our current objections."

The Union president told the delegates, "Our immediate wage and equities cry out loud for correction, and we must, receive more than in any recently settled dispute."

Beirne had said earlier he would announce on Wednesday the date the strike would start, assuming a favorable vote.

Beirne recounted recent strike settlements for the delegates and said most industries received more than the 11 per cent the Bell System had offered.

"It's not good enough to compare us with anybody," he said, "especially on a percentage basis, because we are a special breed with special skills who have subsidized the industry and, yes, the public for far too long."

The CWA president told members he doubted the Bell System was really listening to the problems of the workers.

"This is a disease of those who permit themselves to dwell on their self-importance and self-determined brilliance," he said.

Beirne added that for the past three years the union has documented and advised the management of the Bell System on the inequities which must be corrected in 1971.

"As an example," Beirne said, "I personally talked to the now retired president of ATT within this period of time on their shameful treatment of our members on the savings plan."

Beirne said the union could not accept the basic wages Bell offered for the first year because people with lesser skills in other industries receive higher wages than the Bell System employees right now.

"This is an iniquity which must be corrected," Beirne said. "The shame of discriminating against the operator because most of them are women has to be ended."

Beirne also called for a union shop. "Being required by law to represent services to everybody we simply say everybody should pay for the services rendered," Beirne said.

Earlier in the day, Beirne said that the Nixon Administration's "game plan" to cure inflation has failed.

Beirne said he and top company officials have been meeting but are not yet close on major issues. Union economists say a 25 per cent increase is a justifiable figure. Beirne says the company says "no dice" and has countered with an 11 per cent hike.

He said the company and union are also far apart on a pension package.

Beirne, 62, has been president of the union since 1942. He is running for reelection this year without opposition.

He said the union has a $15-million strike fund which can be used to meet the emergency needs of workers during a strike.

The first Bell contract expired in April and the last does not expire until the end of summer. But he said a strike "could come any time" since the nationwide contract of Western Electric installers has expired.

Studying Veteran Jobless

WASHINGTON (AP) — Voicing great concern for the growing number of Vietnam veterans returning home to the unemployment rolls, President Nixon has ordered an intensive, six-point federal effort to get jobs or job training for ex-servicemen.

"This is an effort which I consider to be of the highest priority in federal manpower and training programs," the President said Sunday, "and of such importance that every available program should be used to the maximum..."

In a letter to James D. Hodgson naming the secretary of labor to direct the job-finding effort Nixon wrote:

"I am greatly concerned at any denial of civilian job opportunities to these young men who have borne the burden of fighting."

"I am also deeply concerned at the evidence that the most serious problem is experienced by those with educational deficiencies or other disabilities."

Hodgson told newsmen 370,000 Vietnam-era veterans don't have jobs, an unemployment rate of 10.8 per cent for those between 20 and 29 years of age. He said the jobless rate for that age group among non-veterans is 8.4 per cent.

Old Glory Requests Are Many

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a large part of nearly every working day one American flag after another is run up a pole over the U.S. Capitol, allowed to flutter for a second or two then lowered.

There is no special occasion being marked. The activity, which takes up several hours, is to satisfy requests to members of Congress by the folks back home for flags that have flown over the venerable building.

Pass Vote Law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri today completed its ratification of the U.S. Constitutional change to extend the vote in all elections to 18-year-olds.

The vote passing the resolution in the Missouri House was 132-14. The Senate passed it earlier.

Gangland Slayings Claim Seven Lives

DETROIT (AP) — Four women and three men were shot to death today at a Detroit home in what police described as a gangland-type slaying apparently related to an underworld war for control of narcotics.

Police District Inspector James Bannon said all seven victims were shot in the head at close range. An eighth person identified as Robert Gardner, 28, was reported in critical condition at Detroit's Ford Hospital.

The dead were not immediately identified.

Police said the slayings apparently were the latest result of a narcotics war which has claimed about 25 lives in Detroit. A search of the house, Bannon said, turned up a dozen handguns, a quantity of suspected narcotics and narcotics paraphernalia.

All of the victims were found in the first-floor living room of the house. The four women had been tied up. Their purses were found in the room, untouched.

The bodies were discovered about 4:30 a.m. by Mrs. Gardner, who told detectives she took her husband to the hospital, then called police.

Detective Sgt. Donald Carter said there were no signs of a struggle in the house.

A witness, who was not identified, told police he saw two men run from the building shortly after the shots were fired.

The house where the shootings took place is located in Detroit's crime-and-violence-ridden 10th Precinct. It is three blocks from the corner where Detroit's 1967 riot began.

Dan Smith, 37, who lives next door to the house, said the youthful occupants of the lower flat were quiet and kept mostly to themselves.

Inspector Bannon said the home was sparsely furnished and it did not appear as though most of the victims had been living there.

Police said that a couple living upstairs heard the shots but remained upstairs and did nothing because they were afraid.

Other neighbors were reluctant to talk to newsmen because they said they feared reprisals.

Special Meeting

Nixon Studying Abuse of Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon called key administration officials to the White House today along with seven U. S. ambassadors as part of a lengthy examination of drug abuse in American society.

Called to the meeting were the envoys to Mexico, Turkey, South Vietnam, Thailand, France, Luxembourg and the United Nations, plus Secretary of State William P. Rogers, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, told reporters at Andrews Air Force Base Sunday night the Saigon government is aware of reports that marijuana and hard drugs are increasingly available in South Vietnam, and is working on the problem.

Besides South Vietnam, the United States has urged the other countries to step up efforts to cope with the drug problem and the illicit traffic in narcotics and marijuana.

White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said today's meeting will be followed later this week by announcement of a government initiative to deal with the reported widespread use of drugs by Americans in Vietnam and the growth of a youth drug culture in the United States.

Last month, a congressional report said so many American soldiers in Vietnam are being hooked on heroin that President Nixon should withdraw all U.S. troops unless the drug traffic is halted.

The report, prepared for the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said many high-ranking Laotian, Thai and Vietnamese officials have a major hand in illegal drug sales to GIs. In some cases, it said, U.S. planes and diplomatic pouches are used to ferry opium and heroin into Saigon.

Recently, the President has sent counselors Robert H. Finch and Donald Rumsfeld to Europe and Africa to discuss drug-abuse prevention and control, including drug usage relating to U.S. military personnel in foreign countries.

Both Finch and Rumsfeld were summoned to the session today, along with Ambassadors Leonard Unger, Thailand; Robert McBride, Mexico; Arthur K. Watson, France; William J. Handley, Turkey, and George Bush, the United Nations.

Set Special Session About Cablevision

The Sedalia City Council will hold a special meeting with representatives of Cablevision, Inc., at 7 o'clock tonight to discuss the firm's financial status and plans for local program origination.

Mayor Jerry Jones said the meeting would be closed to the public but open to newsmen.

According to Jones, "We want to find out what the financial status is of the Sedalia operation. The question of local program origination and the sale of advertising will probably also be discussed," he said.

Both program origination and selling advertising are contrary to existing city ordinances governing cable TV here.

Not long ago the Federal Communications Commission made local programming mandatory for cable television firms. However, last month the U.S. District Court of Appeals in St. Louis over-ruled the FCC decision. The FCC in turn said it would temporarily drop this requirement until it had a chance to take the case to a higher court.

The original FCC ruling led Cablevision here to begin construction of broadcasting facilities.

The local programming move and what it called increasing cost factors prompted the firm to ask for a rate increase of $1 a month, from $4.90 to $5.90. The City Council has not acted on the request since it was made May 17, saying it wanted first to discuss the local operation in depth.

Mayor Jones said the only thing that may be kept confidential about tonight's meeting will be that portion of the session dealing with the company's profit and loss statement.

Home Proves Hard To Find

A local Negro who has been denied admission to any of Sedalia's trailer parks plans to take his case to the city's Zoning Board of Adjustment at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday even though he says discrimination was not involved in the refusals he received.

Ronald E. Johnson Sr., 212 East Morgan, apparently unable to find any other suitable place to live, purchased a 12-by-70 foot trailer home about 10 days ago.

He went to City Hall to get it registered and was told his plans conflicted with the recently-approved city ordinance governing the location of house trailers.

Johnson said he had thought the ordinance would allow setting the trailer on a private lot if he could get neighborhood approval. Only one of his neighbors disliked having the trailer next door, he said.

At City Hall, Johnson was also told it would be illegal for him to set up a trailer on a private lot and he was told to go to one of the city's trailer courts.

After inquiries at six trailer parks in Sedalia, Johnson said he was told his "trailer was too big and none of the courts could accommodate it." After that, Johnson sought the help of Mayor Jerry Jones, who also called each of the trailer courts.

Johnson said that, because he had made the requests to the trailer parks by telephone, "I do not think racial discrimination was involved."

Jones, however, said he felt there was racial discrimination involved. Jones said he saw no reason, other than the fact that Johnson was black, why he should be denied entrance to a trailer park.

Johnson said following the six refusals, Mayor Jones and other city officials issued him a temporary permit to park his trailer at the East Morgan location.

Johnson is an X-ray technician at Bothwell Hospital.

Ann Landers

1st Class Secretary Needs Some Lessons

Dear Ann Landers: This is the first time I got so mad I knew I had to write to you, although I've been tempted several times. I am furious at that dame who signed herself "First Class Secretary." If you ask me she is a lousy secretary. I strongly suspect her interest in her boss goes beyond business.

I am also employed by "a wonderful guy" but he is married which means he is off-limits so far as I am concerned. It doesn't make a particle of difference to me how many times a day his wife telephones him. It's my job to put the calls through. If he doesn't want to talk to her he can tell her so. It is also none of my business how much time the boss' wife spends at this office. If she wants to bring a bedroll down here and sleep on the floor, it's O.K. with me.

If the secretary who wrote wants to be "first-class" she can start by learning to keep her nose and her mouth out of her boss' family affairs. — Twenty Years On The Job Without Trouble.

Dear No Trouble: One of the cardinal rules for being a first-class person — as well as a first-class secretary — is to M.Y.O.B. I am not surprised that you have been "Twenty Years On The Job Without Trouble." Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband, who is a handsome, virile, intelligent and gifted man in his middle years, has dirty literature hidden all over the place. When I say "dirty" I don't mean just girlie pictures. I mean the filthiest hard-core pornography you can imagine. Several months ago I complained about the stuff coming to the house. I learned last week by accident that he is now receiving this garbage at his office.

Is he nuts or is the world sick? I've suggested psychiatric help but he says there is nothing wrong with him. He claims I am narrow-minded, provincial, and hung-up.

Our children are grown. I hate to think of spending the rest of my life with an old fool who gets his kicks from looking at dirty pictures. You usually have a good answer. Do you have one for him? — Numb.

Dear Numb: He doesn't need an answer. He has one. It's dirty pictures. A middle-aged man with a hobby like that is operating at an adolescent level. But you aren't going to change him, so give up. In your opening sentence you say he is "handsome, virile, intelligent and gifted." Count your blessings, Lady — especially blessing number two. Some of those "lookers" can only look.

Dear Ann Landers: Our grandson will be five years old soon. My husband is crazy about the child. We are having an argument over the boy's birthday gift. My husband has selected two fancy toy guns from a catalogue. I am opposed to guns for children. In my opinion, there is too much violence on TV, in the movies — everywhere one looks.

My husband says cops and robbers and Indians and cowboys are as American as apple pie. He insists it is a healthy way for kids to get rid of excess energy. What do you say? — Against It.

Dear Ag: I say banana oil. Games and sports are much better outlets for youthful energy than make-believe killing. I suggest swimming, hiking, roller skating, bicycling and Ping-pong. I am appalled by games that make murder "fun." Such games desensitize children and teach them to accept violence and killing as part of their everyday lives.

Problem of Emphysema Is Difficult To Treat

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My husband has emphysema so we came to Arizona to see if this climate would help him. He doesn't feel bad but is short of breath and can't walk for more than half a block. Is there anything that can be done? He doesn't take anything but a cough syrup to bring up that phlegm.

Dear Reader — Your husband needs to get a good doctor and follow his advice. Emphysema is a very difficult illness to treat. The basic problem is that the outlet for the small air sacs in the lungs is constricted. Air remains trapped in the lungs causing them to remain overinflated. One has to use force to expel the air. This limits the lungs ability to exchange air and to provide enough oxygen. The limited oxygen supply to the body limits the amount of exertion that a person can do.

It is important that anyone with emphysema should avoid all lung irritants — first on this list is tobacco. Unless a person with emphysema quits smoking there is little hope of controlling his disease. Dust, pollens and anything the patient is allergic to should be eliminated.

Some breathing difficulties in people with emphysema and related disorders are caused by infection. Any infection of the lungs should be detected and treated. Any respiratory infection can cause critically narrowing of the already constricted air passages and cause more trouble. For this reason treatment of any respiratory infection should be obtained at once.

Some relief can be obtained in some patients by using medicines that help to dilate the obstructed air passages. These are not effective in all people, however. Testing and trial usage of these medicines has to be done by the doctor taking care of the patient.

There are some general things a person can do to improve his efficiency even if he can't do much for his lungs. Any excess obesity should be eliminated. A person who is fat and can only walk a half block can walk a good deal farther after he has decreased his body weight. Some persons can improve the function of their skeletal muscles. Even if exercise capacity is limited you can exercise one muscle at a time, like one calf muscle then the other, until the muscles all over the body have been exercised. It is a slow process. If you can improve the muscle strength you will increase the number of blood vessels in the muscles. This helps remove the oxygen more completely from the blood circulation through the muscle and is worth trying to improve physical capacity. It won't change the disease in the lungs.

Climate is probably not so important if one had adequate heating and air conditioning. Regardless of where one lives, allergies and respiratory infections should be avoided.

There is no substitute in this disease for good regular medical supervision. Don't try to go it alone.

Boundary Changes Are Said Possible

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — An American Civil Liberties Union official has told black legislators from the South their states can still be required to reapportion on the basis of single-member legislative districts despite the U.S. Supreme Court decision in an Indiana case.

Charles Morgan Jr., southern regional director of the ACLU, told a caucus of 30 black lawmakers from nine Southern states Friday night that the case for single-member districts need only be based on a record of racial exclusion.

"An easy case can be made in every state covered by the Voting Rights Act, based upon the history of exclusion of Negroes from the political process," Morgan said.

Morgan and George Taylor, director of the Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, Jackson, Miss., brief the black lawmakers on the legal questions of legislative reapportionment in light of U.S. Supreme Court recent decisions in Indiana and Hinds County, Miss.

The briefing was closed to the news media, but Morgan, Taylor and the legislators met with newsmen afterward.

The principal reason for calling the caucus, sponsored by the Atlanta-based Voter Education Project of the Southern Regional Council, was confusion resulting from the Indiana and Hinds County decisions, said the project's director, John Lewis. The caucus continued Saturday.

In the Indiana decision, the high court said multimember legislative districts were allowable. In the Hinds County decision, the court ordered a district court to require single-member apportionment.

Morgan, a veteran practitioner of Constitutional law, told the group there is no conflict between the decisions.

He cited a section of the Indiana decision which states: "The real life impact of multimember districts on individual voting power has not been sufficiently demonstrated, at least on this record, to warrant departure from prior cases."

For Women

This Artist's Canvas Is A Woman's Face

By JOYCE GABRIEL

NEW YORK — (NEA) — When Sophia Loren or Princess Grace of Monaco or Russian model Verushka have circles under their eyes, want to cover telltale blemishes or heighten their already high cheekbones they often turn to Gil, internationally known make-up artist.

Making faces beautiful is his business, and it's not limited to already-Beautiful People. His make-up tricks can be used by everyone.

The acid test for any make-up artist is watching him in action, seeing a face before and after his expert hands have smoothed on color and texture, highlighted good features and minimized less-than-perfect ones.

When our model arrived her skin was make-up free, waiting for Gil to work his brand of cosmeticized magic.

As he worked, Max Factor's make-up master talked about what kinds of make-up to use, how to start the process and the best kind of lighting for making-up.

A mirror with light bulbs all around it is best, so no shadows are cast on the face. The shadows could lead to an uneven make-up job.

Every woman should start with a foundation — light for daytime and heavier in texture (pancake or panstick) for evening or photographs. The foundation evens out the naturally uneven skin color. The make-up is applied with a damp sponge, so that even if one uses a lot, it never leaves a thick deposit on the skin.

Gil recommends a creamy foundation, darker than the shade used all over the face, for shading effects to highlight cheekbones, the line between the top of the nose and the tip of the brow, and to add a cleft in an uncleft chin. The darker foundation provides more subtle highlights than, say, a blusher does.

The best way to find the "right" make-up is trial and error. Gil thinks a woman should be experiment-minded about her make-up, constantly trying new products for new effects. He also thinks she should go to a beauty specialist once every six months because as fashion changes, so does beauty and a woman should coordinate her fashion and beauty looks.

For under-eye dark spots or circles, Gil recommends using an eraser stick, applied with a brush only to the dark areas. No more wholesale smearing of white highlighter under the entire eye area — that only makes for two white spots on the face.

Face powder, applied lightly goes over the foundation. And for an eyebrow trick try eyelash adhesive on the brows to make them stand up straight. It acts like an eye opener, Gil tells us.

Under the eye goes a transparent cream highlighter. A cream shadow goes in the crease of the eyelid. Cover the shadow with a light dusting powder, to keep it from smearing. Curl your lashes with an eyelash curler — this makes eyes look bigger.

Eyeliner pencil goes inside the eyeliner — used judiciously. Instead of the closed lid technique used in the Cleopatra Eye era, try an open-eyed approach and just dab liner on the parts of the lid peeking through your eyelashes. This gives a soft, thin line.

Some mascara applied to the lashes, and your makeup is done. Gil says a woman should be able to get her make-up time down to 10 or 15 minutes once she's found the proper products and the right technique to use.

Court Has Upheld Retirement Program

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court today held constitutional the retirement program for Kansas City's municipal judges.

The city's charter was amended in 1966 to put the municipal courts under a nonpartisan court plan, upgrade qualifications for judges and provide for the pension system.

But the city's director of finance, John M. Urie, has refused to pay the retirement benefits for several reasons, a principal one that the legislature would have to pass enabling legislation before the retirement plan would be constitutional.

Earns Polly Dollar

Mrs. E. W. Woolery, 250 Greensboro Road, Heritage Village, will receive a "Polly" dollar for her suggestion which appears in Wednesday's "Polly's Pointers."

Her tip could alleviate problems pet owners have with their dogs.

About Town

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Harris and family honored their nephew, Larry Gene Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Howard, 1422 East Broadway, with a dinner Sunday.

Howard is home on leave from the Navy and will be stationed at Great Lakes, Ill. He was previously stationed in San Diego, Calif.

Receives Award

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — A 12-year-old Greene County junior high school student Friday was given the Girl Scouts' second highest lifesaving award.

Receiving the award in Springfield was Debbie Myers, a member of the Girl Scout Cadet Troop 290, Strafford, Mo. She was honored for rescuing 86-year-old Mrs. Pearl Minor from her burning home in Strafford last Nov. 9.

Girl scout officials said this is the first time the lifesaving award has been presented to a Greene County girl.

When the governor of New South Wales sought to stretch his money in 1813, he imported 40,000 Spanish dollars and had their centers punched out. Each "holey dollar" was worth five shillings. The center piece was valued at a shilling and two pence. The coins also were punched on Canada's Prince Edward Island.

Ways to Salvage Photos in Album

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — So many of the pictures my parents have collected during the past 86 years have been pasted or glued on black photo album paper. Many of the oldest ones have writing on the back — names, dates and places — we would like to know. I want to make a new album for them and then write such information under the pictures but cannot remove them from this black paper without damaging the pictures or removing the writing. I would greatly appreciate any suggestions. — ANN S.

DEAR POLLY — I do appreciate all the manufacturers have done and are doing to aid the housewife but my Pet Peeve is the changing of labels (colors and designs), making it more complicated to find our old reliables. I do thank you for listening to our Pet Peeves. — MRS. R.R.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. W. N. wanted to know the difference between loose lining for a dress or skirt and a sewn-in lining. A lining is joined to the garment at the neck and armholes, and at the waist for a skirt. A lining saves inside wear to the garment, prevents stretching and keeps raw edges from showing. A sewn-in lining is an underlining that is stitched to the outside fabric pieces and they are treated as one layer of fabric thereafter. An underlining adds body and prevents wrinkling. A garment could have both an underlining and a lining and the fabric itself determines which one, or perhaps both, may be needed. — MARY T.

BIG RANCH

VERNON, Tex. (AP) — The mailman recently delivered to the Vernon headquarters of the W.T. Waggoner Ranch a letter from Stockholm, Sweden, addressed simply: "A Big Ranch in Texas, U.S.A."

The Waggoner Ranch covers more than 500,000 acres in six counties.

It is believed to be Texas' largest spread operated as a single ranching unit.

The letter was from two 18-year-old girls who wanted to correspond with cowboys.

OBITUARIES

Buel Byron Ihrig

Rev. B. Jones

SMITHTON — Buel Byron Ihrig, 83, prominent area historian and educator, and a former mayor, died Monday morning at his home here.

Born Dec. 19, 1887, at Cross Timbers, he was the son of John B. and Mary Coudley Ihrig.

On Aug. 8, 1909, he married Lela Pearl Goodman, who survives of the home.

Mr. Ihrig's "History of Hickory County" was published in July, 1970. He served as historian for the Sedalia Centennial.

He attended both Springfield and Warrensburg Teachers Colleges, receiving a B.S. degree in education from the latter, after which he served for 20 years as a teacher and superintendent in the Hickory County school system, before accepting a superintendency at LaMonte public schools in 1927.

In 1932 he entered the University of Missouri, receiving his M.A. degree one year later.

In 1933, he became superintendent of Smithton schools, and held that position until his retirement in 1952, after which he served as a member of the State Textbook Commission.

Mr. Ihrig served several terms as mayor of Smithton, and was active in community and civic interests to the time of his death.

Also surviving are one brother, H. G. Ihrig, 602 South Monteuau, Sedalia; one daughter, Mrs. Angel Reynolds, two grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at the Smithton Christian Church.

The body is at the Neumeyer Funeral Home.

Mrs. Rose M. Fritz

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — Mrs. Rose M. Fritz, formerly of Sedalia and Mora, Mo., died Saturday morning at the Lutheran Medical Center here.

She was born in Mora Oct. 20, 1883, daughter of the late John A. and Mary G. Deppeler. She was married to Robert Fritz in Sedalia May 12, 1908, and he preceded her in death.

She lived in Sedalia until a few years after the death of her husband, when she moved to Brooklyn.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. S. D. Ahn, Brooklyn; a son, Charles E. Fritz, Bethesda, Md.; and two grandchildren.

Following cremation, a memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Wednesday at the Immanuel United Church of Christ, Fourth and Vermont, with the Rev. M. G. Albright officiating.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Police Report

About $50 damage was done to two doors at the Epworth Methodist Church, 1124 East Broadway, when it was broken into Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

The break-in was discovered at 7:37 a.m. Sunday by the Rev. Eugene Trice when he unlocked the building. Mr. Trice told police that thieves had apparently gained entrance to the building by pushing a side door in, which led to the basement.

Efforts to pry open two other doors failed. A door to the pastor's study was damaged when thieves attempted to jimmy the lock. The door was not only pried open, but the door-jamb was torn away. An attempt to force a door leading to the kitchen was apparently unsuccessful, but the door was also heavily damaged.

Pastor Trice said that nothing was apparently missing although some papers on a desk had been disturbed and several drawers had been gone through.

Mrs. Sharon Perkins, 1708 South Sneed, reported to police at 2:57 p.m. Sunday that a power lawnmower had been taken from her father's residence, 1722 South Grand.

Mrs. Robert Cole, 506 West Fourth, reported to police at 8:21 a.m. Sunday that a large suitcase, valued at $100, containing clothing and shoes, had been stolen from her car while it was parked in front of her residence overnight.

Bill Dick, 615 West Third, reported to police at 2:30 a.m. Sunday that a 1968 Chevrolet pickup truck had been stolen from his residence.

The truck had tools, drills and electrical supplies in it. The truck was identified with the letters Queen City Electric Co., on its side, and had been parked in the driveway of Dick's residence with the keys in the ignition, police said.

The truck was recovered at 10:44 p.m. Sunday about a mile and a half north of Georgetown on a gravel road.

Fires In The City

Firemen were called to the Dog and Suds restaurant, 20th and Limit, at 2:05 p.m. Sunday when a 1970 Dodge backfired through the carburetor. The car was owned by Bill Fletcher.

Children smoking cigarettes underneath the front porch at the New Hope Baptist Church, 665 East 17th, caused firemen to go out on a call at 2:17 p.m. Saturday. There was no fire or damage.

Circuit Court

Richard L. Jolly Jr., was granted a divorce from Deborah Jolly Monday in Pettis County Circuit Court.

Isis Foods, Inc., won an $8,661.86 judgment from Sedalia Fish and Chips, Inc., and Lee Tuttle Monday in Pettis County Circuit Court. The judgment was for an account between Isis Foods and the defendant from July 23 to Dec. 31 last year.

Tipton Youngster Is 'Doing Fine'

CHICAGO — Billy Fry, the Tipton youth who underwent a kidney transplant here Thursday will continue to be in intensive care "for several days yet," according to a spokesman for the Children's Memorial Hospital.

It was reported Monday that 11-year-old Billy "is doing fine" and that doctors are "being very careful in order to prevent infection."

Mrs. Lawrence Fry, who returned to Tipton after visiting Billy, told The Democrat-Capital that he is "just doing great."

The U.S. Air Force Academy had temporary headquarters at Lowry Air Force Base in Denver for four years before its campus was ready in 1958.

Dedicate Truman's Early Home

BELTON, Mo. (AP) — A marker designating a childhood home of former President Harry S. Truman was dedicated south of Belton Sunday, and it afforded his sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman, an opportunity to do some reminiscing.

Miss Truman, who is 81, recounted days when her brother, who was five years older, would rock her to sleep.

Then, there was the time... "My uncle Harrison Young was visiting here (at the farm home where the dedication took place) and he wanted Harry to see something that going on outside the house," Miss Truman recalled. "So my mother dropped Harry out a second floor window and he was caught by my uncle."

She told of another occasion when young Truman wandered away from the house and became lost.

"He was in the yard poking at toads with a stick," she said. "After a while he followed the dog down a corn row in a field near the house. My mother said when the dog came back, it would lead us to Harry."

Truman lived at the farm home from about 1885 to 1887, when he was two to three years old, Miss Truman said. Their father farmed and raised corn on the 71-acre tract, which is about five miles south of Belton. The family moved to Grandview, where Miss Truman was born.

The original farm house occupied by the Truman family in the mid 1880s stands in good repair. The nine-room, two-story house was built in 1884 according to its present occupant, Brian D. Frank.

Medberry said the 24 banks financing Lockheed already have $400 million invested in the airbus project, approximately 28 percent of the total.

At the time of the $400 million loan, he said, Lockheed had a net worth of $350 million and a debt of $400 million.

Since then, the net worth has dropped to $235 million and the debt increased to $1.065 billion, he said.

"Simply from the standpoint of prudent banking practice, we do not feel we can ask the shareholders of our lending institutions to assume the additional $250 million risk," he said.

Medberry said the government loan guarantee is essential to the survival of Lockheed.

Moore told the committee other situations will arise where government support will be needed by private business.

The loan guarantee also was endorsed by two prospective purchasers of the Lockheed airbus and by a major supplier of wings for the aircraft.

Charles C. Tillinghast Jr., chairman of Trans World Airlines, said his company could lose between $110 and $125 million if Lockheed goes bankrupt.

"While this would be no means be fatal to TWA, it would seriously impair its ability to finance the purchase of DC-10s with which to replace" the L-1101 TriStar airbus Lockheed was to supply, said TWA chairman Charles C. Tillinghast Jr. in remarks prepared for the Senate Banking Committee.

Tillinghast said suggestions by those opposing the guarantee that the L-1101 could be adequately replaced by the DC-10, made by Douglas Aircraft Corp., are not correct.

"In TWA's case, and I feel confident, also in the case of Eastern, the DC-10s would be substantially fewer and later," he said.

"We have almost within our grasp the best ship yet produced from an environmental standpoint," he said. "What purpose would be served by turning all this into junk? The only effect would be to create a vast economic loss and unemployment."

Error Reported In Phone Number

It was reported in Sunday's Sedalia Democrat-Capital that the telephone number for the local project "Rent-A-Kid" office was 827-2733. Monday it was learned that this was incorrect.

A source at the Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corp., Manpower office in Sedalia said the MVHRDC was originally under the impression it could have that number, which is the same as the one it had last year.

Since this was not possible, however, no phone is presently available. Until a telephone is installed, inquiries may be made to the Manpower office at 826-0804.

LLOYD JEWELLEN
Area Farm Management Agent

University of Missouri Extension Centers
Henry - Johnson - Lafayette - Pettis

For the first time in a number of years, the Missouri State Horticultural Society will sponsor a summer field day. The date of the field day is June 15, 1971.

The place is the University of Missouri Horticultural Experimental Field at New Franklin, Mo. This will be a good time for you to see the research facilities of the Department of Horticulture in the area of fruit, vegetable and nursery research and get some detailed information on such fruit subjects as varieties, rootstocks, pruning methods, spraying schedules for insect control and disease prevention; herbicide usage and a host of other things.

A noon meal, courtesy of the Missouri State Horticultural Society will be served at the Experimental Farm.

Feeding on Grass

Feeding grain to cattle on pasture is a practice on many farms. Cattle fed grain on pasture will finish quicker for slaughter. The grain will save about 25 per cent of the grass. In summary from several research trials on feeding cattle while on pasture, it appears that limiting grain to about one pound per 100 pounds of body weight usually provides the best use of pasture for systems where grain is to be fed on pasture to finish cattle. Mixing 10 per cent salt into the grain mix is a labor-saving method for limiting in-take at this level. Fifteen per cent salt will limit the grain to a half pound per cwt. of body weight. A short drylot feed will usually finish the cattle to grade with the one pound rate. Protein supplements are of doubtful value for cattle limited-fed grain on grass legume mixtures. Protein needs to be added about mid-June if the pasture is mainly grasses.

Implants

Five hundred pounds steers on high roughage or pasture diets respond to stilbestrol the response is usually somewhat less than on high grain rations. A 24 milligram implant should be used with steers on pasture, corn silage, or similar rations. A 24 milligram implant has increased gains of yearling steers on good pasture by as much as 30 to 40 pounds in six months period. Stilbestrol pellets are implanted beneath the skin on the backside of the ear. An implant is completely absorbed in about 120-130 days. Steers over 600 pounds should receive 30-36 milligrams as an implant.

Silage

In terms of pounds of beef per acre, milo does not appear to be a good substitute for corn on good corn land for silage. Corn with a grain yield level of 100 bushel per acre will yield 35 to 50 per cent more than milo at the same 100 bushel level.

Feeding trials reported by the University of Ohio showed that it took 590 pounds of corn silage to make 100 lbs. of beef gain compared to 940 pounds of milo silage. Rolling to crush the seed did improve the milo silage by over 10 per cent. I believe the best use of milo is to harvest the grain and then use the stubble as silage for beef cows self-fed.

Hybrid sorghums may equal or exceed the tons of corn silage produced per acre. Tonnage alone, however, is not necessarily a good measure of production for livestock feeds. Animal performance will depend upon the legal and digestibility of nutrients and the palatability of the forage. The class of cattle that will be fed the forage will be a factor, too. A roughage that gives maximum production or profit per acre as a feed for wintering a mature pregnant beef cow may be too low in available energy or too low in palatability to be suitable for young animals or for cattle in the feedlot.

Weed Killer Failure

There is little doubt about the value of herbicides in general, but there is variation in their effectiveness. If there is poor weed control the cause often lies not with the chemical but in the method or time of application or in the weather.

When atrazine is applied to the soil as a pre-emergent treatment, the chemical is moved into the top few inches of the soil by either rain, soil moisture, or light tillage. Once in the soil, it is absorbed by the weeds and grass seedlings.

In the past it was believed that most chemicals were taken in through the roots; however, research indicates that most chemicals are more effective when placed in the shoot zone (the top two inches of soil) than when placed in the root zone, and, it appears the chemical is actually being absorbed into the seedling by that part of the plant growing above the seed. In recent studies, it was found that of the eleven major herbicides included in trials all reduced top growth of weeds when placed in the shoot zone.

Moisture (rainfall) is the key. Formerly it was believed rainfall just moved the chemical down into the root zone and activated it. However, recent studies indicate another important function of rainfall may be to provide needed moisture so the chemical can be readily absorbed by the plant. The amount of rainfall actually needed isn't known, but best results have been obtained with from 1/4 to 3/4 inch of normal rainfall within a week to ten days of application.

When the soil is dry or when no rain is received a few days after application, the chemical is not incorporated into the germinating region, or there isn't enough moisture for it's absorption by the weed and grass seedlings, don't overlook the fact that seed bed preparation may have created a local drought in the field. Large amounts of buried trash or long exposure of a loose seed bed to a drying wind and hot sun may leave it very dry while the fields around are reasonably moist.

If no rainfall occurs in 5 days or so after application, it may be beneficial and even necessary to incorporate the herbicide mechanically. Heavy or excessive rainfall on the other hand, may carry the herbicide down past the effective zone, or dilute the weed killer so much that it becomes ineffective and may even cause germination damage by the chemical to the planted crop.

Sunlight and temperature both effect plant growth directly and thus indirectly because of their effect on the rate of plant growth.

In the case of Atrazine which actually kills plants by interfering with the plants' growth process, the chemical will provide the killing activity only when the weeds are exposed to sunlight and are actively manufacturing food. This activity is greatly reduced during periods of cold temperatures, and heavy cloud cover, and become almost totally inactive during darkness.

Warm weather encourages fast plant growth. The faster the weeds grow, the more rapidly the chemical is absorbed by the plant. Periods of cold weather generally greatly slow down plant growth as well as weed killing action.

Machinery Management

Machinery investments of over $50,000 per farm are not uncommon in farm operations. In fact, the machine investment per worker in farming is higher than that of any other industry. With the necessity to own and operate machines and equipment, how can farm managers keep costs in line with efficient and profitable production?

First of all, we can't get away from increasing machinery investment costs. In order to get today's power jobs done, we need more and bigger machines working on tighter schedules. The average machinery investment per farm, according to our Mail-In-Records, has increased over 50 per cent since 1963. However, the profitability of machinery use is not altogether determined by the total investment. Rather, it is the per acre or per unit ownership and operating costs that are important. For example, last year the average annual machine costs per crop acre — was $19, but varies from $4 to $6 per acre.

The annual fixed cost of farm machinery stays the same regardless of use. Thus, to keep machine costs per acre as low as possible, the use of equipment should be spread over more acres or units. Perhaps this can be done by renting additional acres, doing custom work, or even jointly owning some equipment can help keep the fixed costs down. Being "over-equipped" is costly in any business.

Secondly, any new equipment needs to be economically justified in the farm operation. Each machine should be selected for the job to be done on the particular farm. If the use is limited, it might pay to look at used equipment or custom hire if the risk is not too high. I read a story recently about one of the big farms in a nearby state having all of its harvesting operations done by custom hire.

Third, the ownership of fixed costs will tend to increase with more frequent trade-ins. Thus, the biggest payoff can be achieved in extending the useful life of machinery and equipment. This is where a well-trained tractor operator can be a "cost-reducer" even if he must be better paid to keep him. The time spent on proper operation and maintenance of equipment will pay off in a big way in reducing the costs of owning and operating it.

Bagworms

Eggs of the bagworm are just starting to hatch this week. The hatch should continue over a two week period so control measures should take this into account. The larvae are easily controlled while small however the eggs must have hatched for controls to be effective.

Formal Clipped Hedge Look

The clipped hedge is not a low maintenance planting. It is formal in effect and best suited to formal architecture styles. Nevertheless, it is popular and often included as part of landscape plantings.

Hedges, clipped or not, serve many purposes. Some are used to mark property lines, walks or drives. Others serve as barriers to keep out children or animals. Or, they may serve both purposes at once. They may become screens to hide objectionable views, provide privacy, or serve as windbreaks.

Hedges should be dense, compact, and easily clipped. Plants with small to medium sized leaves make the best hedges.

In planning a hedge, decide what you want to accomplish and how much space you can devote to it. Some plants require a base width equal to their height. Therefore, if you want a hedge six feet tall, you will need a space six feet wide. If this much space is not available, narrow growing plants, screens, or fences may be the best solution.

Evergreen plants may be the most desirable hedge to screen out views. Evergreen hedges usually grow slower than deciduous types and are more expensive to establish.

To develop a dense, beautiful clipped hedge start pruning early. The clipped hedge requires regular maintenance. Make sure clipping is done properly so the extra effort will be well rewarded.

Pruning a hedge is an art and a science. Many hedges fail because the science of pruning was ignored. This is unfortunate because pruning is really very simple.

Start pruning heavily when the hedge is planted. This establishes balance between tops and roots of plants, and also promotes low branching.

After the hedge is established, shear it lightly and often. Deciduous hedges normally should be clipped two to four times each summer. Evergreen hedges normally need pruning only once, usually in June.

Avoid shearing the hedge too late in the summer. They may result in a "chopped" look that lasts all winter. In some cases it may force out late growth that will be easily injured during the winter.

Always shear a hedge to a broad base. Never prune to a vase shape — wider at the top than at the bottom. This is probably the most common mistake and cause of poor hedges. If the base is not slightly wider than the top, bases of plants are shaded out, the hedge becomes thin and

Outstanding Student Drowns at Gallatin

GALLATIN, Mo. (AP) — A Missouri champion debater and former president of the student body at Oak Park High School in Kansas City drowned Sunday afternoon while swimming in Lake Viking, near Gallatin.

The youth, Glen Stout, 18, apparently became fatigued as he swam from a raft about 100 yards from the shore.

Stout was swimming with his fiancée, Glenna Love, 17, who told Daviess County Coroner Jack Toland that they both became tired during the swim but she was able to reach shore.

Swimmers recovered the body soon after the drowning.

Privet and barberry are still widely planted as clipped hedges. There are many other suitable plants. A few are dwarf winged euonymus, dwarf willow, Korean boxwood, Japanese holly, yews, hemlocks, tall hedge buckthorn, Cornelian cherry, hedge maple, blackhaw, shingle oak, junipers, and eastern white pine.

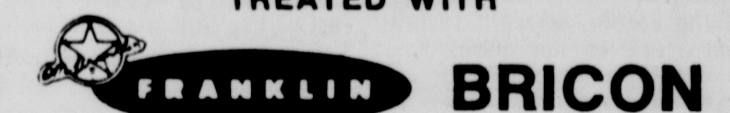

If a clipped hedge is more work than you care for, most of these plants will also form a suitable — although larger — hedge without clipping.

Many Night People Are Never Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Pity the person who has spent his whole working life as a nine-to-five. He's missed knowing another world that flourishes on the opposite side of the clock.

For in the darkened heart of most large cities, deserted by the daylighters, an army of night toilers works a mirror-image life.

Long after the daytime desk set has abandoned the office towers a battalion of workers clean and polish office spaces for people they never see.

You may have noticed them on the bus or subway some time when you were returning from a late night out. They were the sturdy men in gray clothes and heavy shoes and the solid-looking women with strong hands who rush into the cars to grab a seat and gossip in half a dozen languages.

Sharing the almost deserted streets with the buses, the nocturnal cabbie prowls for a fare or haunts the late closing bars, hotels and airports. He doesn't have the heavy traffic to worry about, but worries instead about the passenger with a gun or knife who is after more than a ride home.

Prowling those same streets in squad cars, the graveyard-shift patrolmen fight off the debilitating boredom as they search the checkerboard of lights and darkness for some sign of trouble.

In firehouses around the sleeping city, the 6 p.m. to 9 a.m. crew plays cards or tries to sleep until the alarm bells send them howling through the darkness to the fire that has ended someone else's sleep, and maybe their life.

Tired-eyed doctors and nurses wait in hospitals to receive the casualties of these fires, or the human wreckage from the high-speed auto accidents the empty highways and the late hours seem to produce, or the losers of some vicious family argument.

Sharing the night are the telephone operators connecting lonely hearts separated by too many miles, disc jockeys holding one-way conversations with insomniacs and fellow soldiers of the nights, all-night restaurant operators, newsmen.

Dwelling on the fringe of even this life are the tattered citizens of a third world, shuffling along the gutters from waste bin to waste bin, filling their filthy shopping bags with the castings off of the normal world that has rejected or been rejected by them.

They disappear to somewhere before the dawn and are replaced on the awakening streets by men with buckets and ladders who get the storefronts off to a bright start.

Brother Switch Foiled

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — Glenn Storer, the GI whose brother took his place in Vietnam for a brief time, was reduced in rank two grades and fined $140 today for being absent without leave for 13 days.

Storer, 21, of Yarmouth, Maine, was reduced from specialist 4th class to private and ordered to forfeit $73 of his pay for two months. He waived a court-martial and was tried by his battalion commander.

A spokesman said Storer is now back with his unit at Landing Zone Chloe, a forward base in the Que Son mountains about 25 miles south of Da Nang. He is a member of a reconnaissance platoon in the Americal Division.

Glenn returned to Yarmouth for a two-week leave early in April. He told his brother Wesley, a 22-year-old ski instructor, that he hated the war and wasn't going back. Wesley, who looked much like Glenn, took his brother's uniform and papers and returned to Vietnam in his place.

The men in Glenn's unit knew at once that Wesley was an impostor but agreed at first to go along with the masquerade. But when a field mission came up, one of the men figured somebody would get hurt and turned Wesley in. Meanwhile Glenn had surrendered in the States. He returned to Vietnam last month and Wesley flew home.

Albuquerque Outbreak

A crowd of young persons watches as a car burns in front of a park where demonstrations broke out in Albuquerque Sunday. The fighting resulted in looting and burning in the downtown area. (UPI)

In Albuquerque

Emergency in Disorder

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A state of civil emergency was imposed here early today after a night of wild disorder in which 11 persons were wounded by gunfire, businesses burned and looted and police headquarters stoned by a crowd of 500 young people.

The trouble flared after a police apparently tried to make arrests at a park for public drinking.

Under the emergency order, a curfew was in effect from 1 a.m. until 6 a.m., with all persons on the streets subject to arrest or questioning. But the violence continued into the early morning hours.

Two of those shot were hit by shotgun pellets as police drew a restraining line around a looted liquor store well into the curfew hours.

A third person had been wounded there earlier by an armed employee of the store.

Of the others wounded, one was hit by gunfire at a crowded city park where the trouble started Sunday afternoon when police attempted to arrest a young man, or a group of youths, for public drinking. Police would not explain the attempted arrest.

Hospitals which treated the wounded could not say where in the city the others had been shot, nor could police.

After the attempted arrests at Roosevelt Park, an area popular with young people and about two miles from the downtown area, a crowd gathered and pelted the officers and police reinforcements with rocks and bottles.

Two police cars were overturned and set afire. Three others were damaged. Officers responded with tear gas, then, according to an Albuquerque Journal newsmen at the scene, drew their pistols and fired at persons in the crowd.

When police pulled back, the crowd moved toward the center of Albuquerque.

Witnesses said at least three marchers carried rifles.

At police headquarters, the crowd threw rocks at the building, set fire to another police vehicle, overturned a private car and broke windows in many nearby buildings.

Riot police broke up the crowd with more tear gas and many of the young people headed back for the park.

Police said looting and burning traced the path of the young people between the park and downtown Albuquerque.

The fire department reported receiving some 40 calls during the disturbance, although some were false alarms. Police said they had reports of 20 set fires.

The liquor store was looted and set afire after the young people moved away from center city. A neighboring grocery store also was set afire.

Firemen refused at first to respond to the call, but later fought the fires when police provided protection for them.

City police said none of their officers was wounded, but that several were injured by thrown rocks or bottles.

They said 15 persons were arrested on charges ranging from public drinking to taking part in a disturbance. All were released on their own recognizance.

Richard Moore, defense minister of the Black Berets, a Mexican-American group, said police "started putting on strong pressure and some of the guys got fed up."

"We want to talk with the officers who shot people in the park," Moore told newsmen. "When the police opened fire there was no problem. We got our guns to protect ourselves. The time is going to come again, and we're going to have to shoot back."

A group of about 16, including Moore, met at police headquarters with chief Donald Byrd and complained of police brutality in the incident.

For Civil Rights

Lack of Funds Blasted

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey said today that lack of money in city government is causing the biggest violation of civil rights in the nation. He outlined eight programs aimed at solving the problem, including a new bank for low-cost loans.

Humphrey's remarks were prepared for delivery to more than 400 mayors gathered for the 38th annual meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and Housing and Urban Development Secretary George Romney also were to address the conference today.

"We must guarantee every American, no matter where he lives, certain basic minimal services and standards," Humphrey said. "Clear air, well-lighted streets, good garbage collection, public safety and other basic services are matters of right for every American."

Before his speech, the Minnesota Democrat told newsmen these services are "the new civil rights."

"The biggest violation of civil rights in the nation today is the breakdown in city services," he said. "When city services break down they always do it first in areas where the poor live. When these services are cut back, who is hurt? The poor in the inner city."

He characterized as his new "long-term solution" the creation of a national domestic development bank "to give cities, towns, counties and states an alternative and supplemental source of capital funds."

The bank, which he has proposed in a Senate bill, would eventually provide $150 billion in long term, low-interest loans. Its operations would be financed by bonds sold to the federal government and private investors. Dividend income from the bonds would be partially exempt from federal income tax to encourage investors.

He also called for speedy enactment of legislation to return federal revenues to state and local governments with no restrictions on how it is spent.

President Nixon; Muskie; Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and Humphrey with Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., all have advance plans for this kind of general federal revenue sharing. Humphrey emphasized that he did not care which plan was approved by Congress.

"We cannot worry about authorship or partisanship," he said. "The cities are in desperate shape."

Humphrey also proposed that revenue from the federal highway trust fund used to finance interstate highways be opened to the cities, "to pave city streets and build new streets, to create parking areas and to help finance maintenance costs," as well as for urban mass transit.

Begins His Voyage

Jim Brinton, a Seattle Community College student, pushed off from a Washington dock this weekend, starting a planned crossing of the Pacific Ocean to Japan in his 17-foot kayak, with his provisions intact. However, a few miles out to sea, his overturned kayak was discovered. Brinton is missing and a search is underway. (UPI)

Kayak Overturns

Sailor Is Lost at Sea

SEATTLE (AP) — As a boy, he once sailed a small boat across the Baltic Sea. Now 25-year-old James Brinton has been lost at sea, the victim of what his stepfather calls an obsession to be the first to cross an ocean in a kayak.

"I used to be a seaman, and I know the power of the sea on a little boat, but there was nothing anyone could do to stop him," said James D. Moore.

"Jim always loved the water, but he just got possessed with an idea, and once he got it, that was it."

Brinton's capsized 17-foot craft was discovered intact by a fisherman in the Pacific Ocean about four miles off Washington's Olympic Peninsula early Sunday, 24 hours after the Seattle youth left LaPush, Wash., for what was to have been a 7,000-mile, three-month journey to Japan.

Two aircraft, a Coast Guard cutter and a local fishing boat searched in winds to 29 miles per hour and six-to-10-foot seas, but late Sunday Coast Guard spokesmen said there was little chance Brinton would be found alive.

Moore said he shared the official view, with some qualification.

"Jimmy was a marvelous swimmer; he always excelled at whatever he did," he said. "He had a wetsuit and a life-jacket, and if he was in the suit and pointed in the right direction, he could have made it to shore."

The kayak, he said, was crammed with provisions for the trip. Special food had been collected by a Seattle dietician to save space, but Moore said the craft still appeared to be overloaded.

"He had been going out and practicing with the kayak, but never with all that weight," he said. "He should have tried the boat out in different conditions."

"Outwardly, when he left, he looked very confident, but how he looked when he got out there on the water and saw how loaded he was, I don't know," Moore said.

Brinton spent most of his teen-age years boating and swimming in Puget Sound, Moore said. On several occasions he swam ashore from swamped sailboats. He was an Eagle Scout by 15.

At 16, during a European trip, he went on a sailing expedition through the Baltic to the North Sea. He served a tour of duty with the Army in Vietnam, and was a student at Seattle Community College with plans to become a teacher.

NEW YORK (AP) — A sick black leopard, his dead twin brother, and other zoo animals seem to be sounding an alarm bell that humans are endangered by lead in the air, pathologists cautioned today.

The main source of this lead seems to be gasoline fumes and industrial operations, they said.

The ailing leopard—nicknamed "Mr. Leo Pard"—is being treated at the New York Medical College to rid his body of high concentrations of lead for the second time in his 18 months of life.

He was recently brought in again, suffering from convulsions, from the Staten Island Zoo in New York City, where his twin brother died last November.

An autopsy found that animal "loaded with lead." Cats lick their fur, which can attract lead or other heavy elements in the atmosphere.

Sending "Mr. Leo Pard" back to the zoo again could be his death warrant from a third round of lead poisoning, said Dr. Ralph Strebel, one of the pathologists.

Other big cats—lions, tigers, jaguars—at the Staten Island Zoo have been found to have elevated levels of lead and zinc in their stools and hair, and so to a lesser degree have big cats at the Bronx Zoo, 15 miles away, said Strebel, associate professor of pathology at the medical college. He is project director of a comparative pathology program designed to benefit both humans and animals.

Bobcats, living outdoors at the zoo, have more lead than cats living inside, he said. Some monkeys had significant lead concentrations, so did some snakes that died of starvation because of some illness—whether due to lead poisoning or not. The malady caused them to turn on their backs and they couldn't seek food.

A fellow hospital patient with Leo Pard is a big owl whose feathers are falling out—whether from lead or not has not been determined.

Lead was detected in mice found dead inside and just outside the Staten Island Zoo, said Dennis F. Craston, Toxicologist in the chief medical examiner's office here and a member of the medical college staff.

He found elevated lead content in animals and in grass, leaves, bricks and air exhaust ducts of new buildings.

Paints containing lead—including some latex paints supposedly free of lead—on walls or bars that animals can rub against or lick are probably the second main source of the lead, Craston said.

The group also approved a resolution urging President Nixon to withdraw all U.S. troops from Indochina "as soon as possible" and asked all members of the synd to write the President on the matter.

ORANGE CITY, Iowa (AP) — A proposal to abolish the selective service system and replace it with an all-volunteer army was defeated here Friday night by the 165th Regular General Synod of the Reformed Church of America.

The group on the final day of its annual meeting here approved, however, continuing support of conscientious objectors and urged that suitable alternative employment be found for them.

The group also approved a resolution urging President Nixon to withdraw all U.S. troops from Indochina "as soon as possible" and asked all members of the synd to write the President on the matter.

Five Are Dead

Concern Over 3 Babies

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Four of the nine babies born to 29-year-old Geraldine Brodrick were still alive today, but the condition of three of them was causing concern.

A hospital bulletin this morning said there was no change in the condition of the first baby delivered just before dawn Sunday, a girl. The condition of the other two girls and a boy "gives cause for some concern," it said.

Doctors reported Mrs. Brodrick was well and "catching up on some sleep." She did not require more than routine post-natal care and was unlikely to remain in the hospital any longer than a single-pregnancy mother, they said.

The mother had not seen the babies, who were two months premature and weighed between one and two pounds.

The birth of the nonuplets was the largest multiple birth on record. Amid the proliferation in mass births since the use of fertility drugs became widespread in the past decade, eight babies were born to a Mexican woman on March 10, 1967, but all died within 14 hours.

Mrs. Brodrick has two daughters, 5 and 4 years old, but had taken a fertility drug to correct a hormonal disorder.

The first two of her nonuplets, both boys, were stillborn. Two boys and a girl died Sunday night after experiencing respiratory difficulties.

Mrs. Brodrick's husband, Leonard, is a 32-year-old meat salesman and she is a former nurse. They live in Canberra, Australia's capital.

The woman entered a Sydney hospital three weeks ago after tests showed she was likely to have sextuplets. Doctors advised her five days ago that further tests indicated nine babies would be born.

The five boys and four girls were delivered naturally in 32 minutes by a medical team headed by Harvey M. Carey, 54, head of the School of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the University of New South Wales. Mrs. Brodrick's two other children were born by Caesarean section.

Brodrick, who had been living at the hospital for several days, said in a television broadcast, "Geraldine looks terrific." Asked about names for the babies, he said, "We'll leave that for at least a week. There's too much else to consider at present."

It was reported that the babies had been provisionally baptized by a Roman Catholic nurse at the hospital.

The Brodricks sold their story to a Sydney newspaper and broadcasting group for an undisclosed sum.

State Legislature Disappoints Public

The Kansas City-based Citizens Conference on State Legislatures recently completed a 14-month study of the nation's legislatures under a grant from the Ford Foundation.

All 50 states were ranked in order of effectiveness, with Missouri ranking 35th. The legislatures were evaluated in terms of their ability to "function effectively, account to the public for their actions, gather and use information, avoid undue influence and represent the interests of their people."

Some of the goings-on lately in Jefferson City would make it appear that avoiding undue influence is something the Missouri Legislature doesn't do very well.

We spoke out in this column last Sunday against a proposal before the General Assembly to increase the maximum permissible truck length on the state's highways to 72 feet, a hike of 7 feet.

The effect on traffic and the danger to motorists was clear for all to see, we thought, and the bill had been roundly condemned by several state and private agencies concerned with safety and the average motorist.

But on Wednesday, the House fell in 91-44 to pass the legislation, chalking up another victory for the Missouri Bus and Truck Association.

(Sen. Ike Skelton voted for the bill in the Senate May 24. Rep. Joe Rains was absent with leave during the House vote.)

The General Assembly has tended to side with pressure groups on a dismaying amount of legislation this session, including such measures as scenic rivers, reform of the fee system and some environmental bills, to mention a few.

In fact the Legislature just passed a strip mine reclamation law this session, the last major mining state to do so, after many years of falling in line with industry interests.

The latest example of the absurd-lengths to which the Legislature will sometimes go to placate pressure groups came on Thursday when the Senate amended a bill to control dogs in state parks, by providing for "hot pursuit" into parks by dogs that are chasing wild animals—a bow to fox, coon and possum hunters.

There are numerous legislators in both the Missouri House and Senate that are public-spirited men of integrity. Unfortunately there also are several who are more inclined to put special interests above those of the public.

Some recent examples of the latter type of legislating make us wish there was a citizens' lobby in Jefferson City that packed the kind of clout the private ones do.

Lucky One?

Miami Beach Set For the Democrats

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It looks pretty likely now that Miami Beach will get the 1972 Democratic convention to be set in early July. If that's it, the people in Miami Beach may come to wonder why they ever wanted the thing.

Blossat

There's bound to be at least a minor explosion of emotion, though the intensity of Chicago in 1968 almost certainly won't be matched.

One reason difficulties are predictable is that the party's ardent left consistently takes the position that if its narrow minority doesn't win, that means the whole setup is lousy and illegal.

Barring some freakish combination of events, the arch left isn't going to win. It will lose because most of the people they want to "give power to" are in the middle, where they are not. The cries of pain, signifying "injustice," will be loud. Action will be, er, vigorous.

Another factor forecasting trouble looms larger with the passing weeks. Reformers who have labored hard and earnestly to open up the convention delegate selection process probably imagine they're going to get an amazingly "wide-open" convention.

Yet one of the big things happening in the name of reform appears to point the other way. So far, eight new primaries have been added to the rolls, for a total of 23 against 15 in 1968. It might go to 26 if Delaware, Michigan and Louisiana all convert present interest into law.

What does this do for the "wide-open" convention?

It means, above all, that — on the day the convention first meets — a higher proportion of the total delegate roster will be legally bound to one candidate or another than ever in U.S. political history.

Just on the basis of present primary status, 744 delegates would be bound, and another 416 could be bound under certain circumstances. That comes to 1,160, roughly two-thirds of the 1,509 needed for nomination and somewhat more than a third of the 3,016 grand total.

The figure could be altered upward by new primary additions. It could be moved downward by action in Massachusetts (102 votes), where major change in the law is pending. But the "bound" total will stay high.

It is interesting to note, against the "reform" backdrop, that voting results will bind delegates in five of the eight new state primaries — Maryland, Tennessee, North Carolina, New Mexico and Alaska. They MAY be binding in another — Rhode Island.

Altogether, 10 states presently have legally binding primaries and in six more the delegates may be bound.

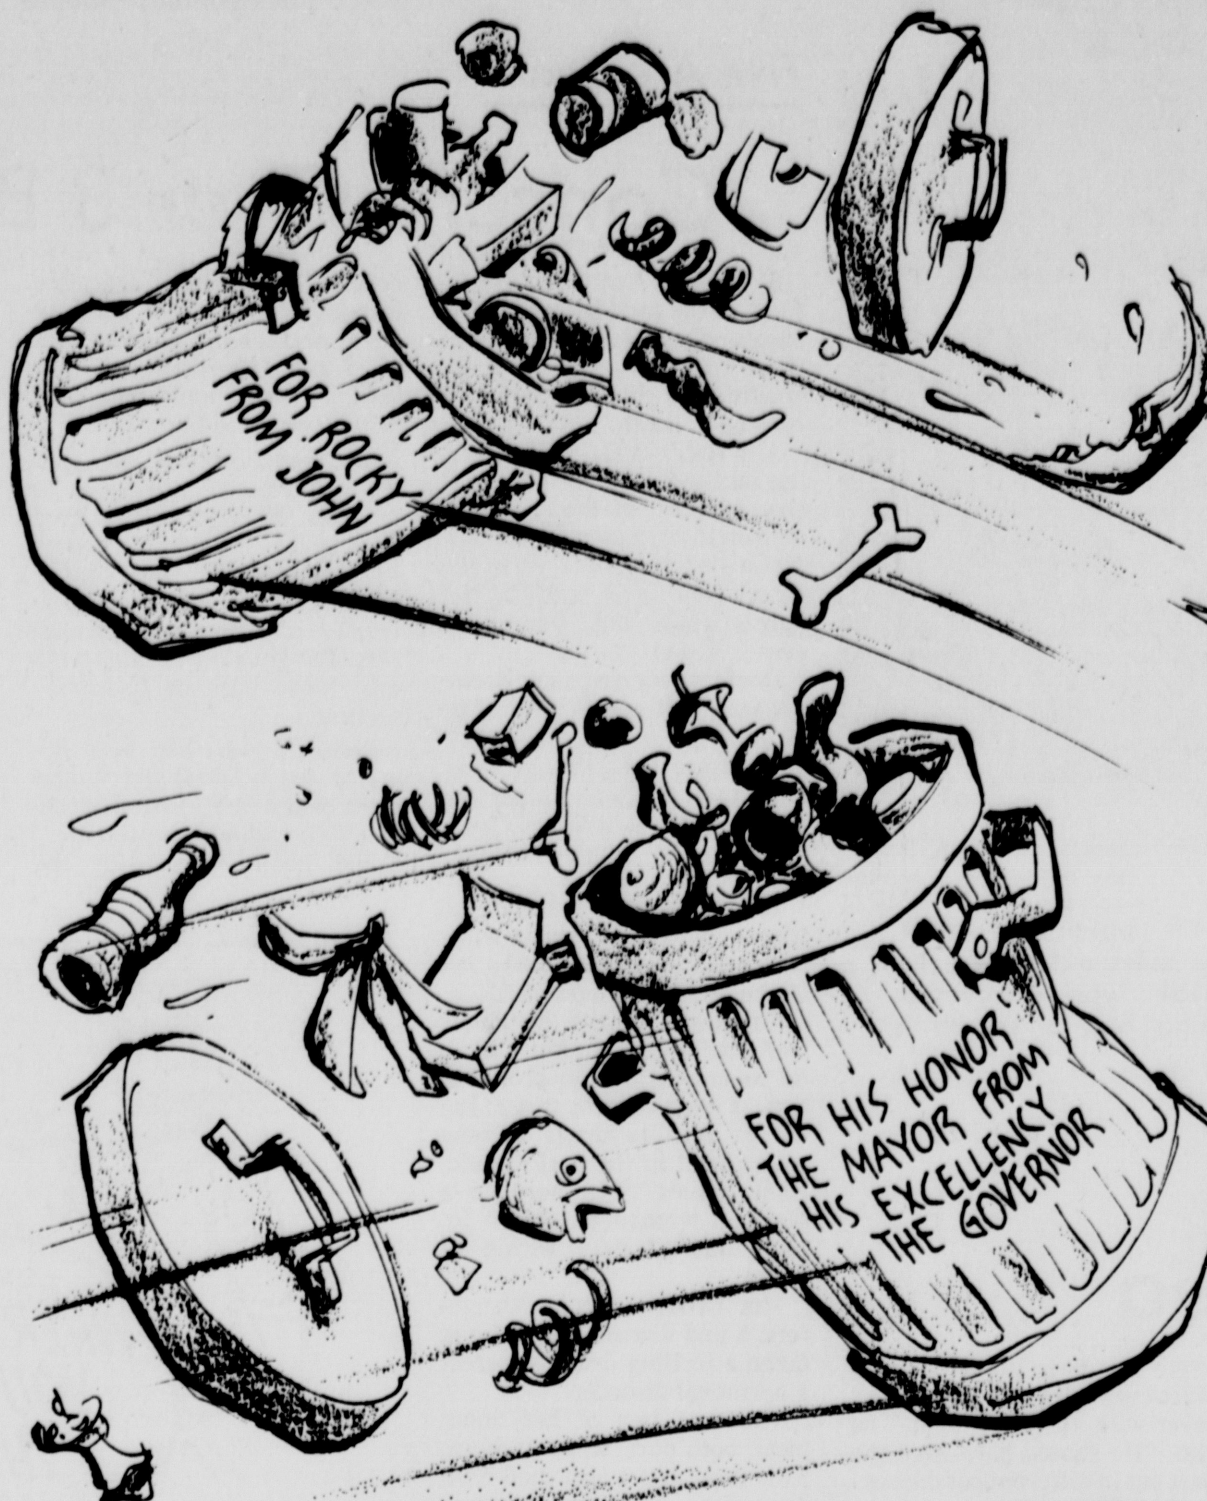

You will sometimes hear it argued that, yes, these delegates will be bound — but only for a ballot or two. Silly argument. Beginning in 1932, the two major parties together have held 20 conventions. Exactly 16 of the 20 were decided on the first ballot. Two went three ballots, one went four and one, far back in 1940, went six.

Now this entire business, greatly magnified by the new primaries, points up a terrible contradiction in the arguments of "open convention" delegates. At least since the 1960 nomination of John F. Kennedy, they have been shouting "rigged!" whenever a large proportion of the delegates seemed committed before the first gavel fell.

Rigged? Really? The changes for 1972 mean that millions more voters than ever before will have a hand in the nomination decision. The voters involved will include those in possibly nine of the nation's 10 most populous states with the largest convention delegate totals.

Is it more democratic to ignore these voter choices (and even those made in state conventions where no primaries exist), in favor of delegate decisions rendered in the frantic, artificial, pressure-cooker atmosphere of a no-sleep national convention?

The cockroach can carry agents of typhoid, cholera and possibly leprosy. Some 400 species of insects feed on the apple tree.

Merry-Go-Round

Chairman of FTC Backs Gas Barons

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Federal Power Chairman John Nassikas, who is supposed to protect the housewives from excessive gas charges, has conspired instead to add a whopping $4 billion to their bills.

He has gone so far as to conceal evidence and mislead senators about the $4 billion rate increase, which has been greased for approval.

The suppressed evidence — in the form of studies, letters and memos — have been kept under lock by Nassikas. Nevertheless, we have obtained copies of these damning documents.

Squeezing $4 billion out of the housewives, of course, is a complex operation. It is easier to understand a $1,000 payoff to a politician than the bilking of billions from the consumers. But here are the facts as simply as we can present them:

The Federal Power Commission fixes the basic rates that millions of consumers pay for natural gas. The gas producers always want to raise the rates, naturally, to increase their profits. But the FPC was established to keep the public from being gouged.

The producers are now seeking a rate increase on the gas they will draw from a vast Louisiana reservoir. The higher rate, which would be tacked on to the monthly bill of every householder who uses the gas, is supposed to be an incentive to encourage the producers to sink more wells.

The producers, however, have greatly understated the amount of natural gas available under the Louisiana bed. Their figures make the risk and expense of sinking new wells appear to be far higher than is true.

The American Gas Association, which speaks for the producers, estimated one part of the Louisiana reserves to be 24 trillion cubic feet. But the FPC's own experts, after careful calculation, came up with a 34 trillion figure. The difference of 10 trillion cubic feet would seriously weaken the producers' case for a rate increase.

Yet Nassikas not only accepted the producers' figures but suppressed estimates that were damaging to the producers. This shocking malfeasance, which could cost the consumers a staggering $4 billion, should be grounds for impeachment.

We know from the suppressed Nassikas papers that the federal power chairman was fully informed as early as February, 1970, by both his economics and producers divisions that the industry's figures were suspect. Yet he concealed the discrepancy and sided with the gas producers in public statements, Senate hearings and congressional correspondence.

The FPC's experts based their estimates, in part, upon figures furnished by the pipeline companies. These figures were far higher than those submitted by the gas producers. Yet Nassikas told Sen. Phil Hart, D-Mich., the Senate antitrust chairman, that the gas reserve figures from the producers and pipeline operators "closely parallel" each other.

This appears to be an outright lie. For Nassikas knew full well from his own economic study, dated Feb. 12, that the figures were "surprisingly wide apart."

One of the Nassikas papers shows dramatically how the economic division had tried to persuade the FPC to uphold the consumers. Failing this, an appeal was made to Nassikas' general counsel, Gordon Gooch, to amend the legal brief to show that the economics division had objected to the FPC giveaway.

The economics office wrote a strong, detailed dissent. It not only was excluded from the legal brief but was buried in the locked files. Thus the economics experts were denied even the dignity of dissent.

Then, over the protests of consumer advocates, Nassikas took the $4 billion rate case away from a tough hearing examiner, Martin Rendelman. The American Public Gas Association, which fights for the consumers, tells us this move was unprecedented.

A formal ruling from the FPC is still pending. But since Nassikas has concealed evidence damaging to the gas producers and has quashed Rendelman's objective views, the fix clearly is in. Only an outpouring of mail from the housewives can save them from $4 billion in extra gas payments.

In coming days, we will quote more fully from the Nassikas papers, which are supposed to be hidden forever from the public. We will also turn the documents over to appropriate congressional authorities for action.

Footnote: Nassikas refused to talk with us. Gordon Gooch, his chief counsel, explained Nassikas cannot comment because the case is still pending. Gooch himself spoke emphatically with us for an hour, denying any suppression or wrongdoing by Nassikas or other FPC officials.

Phony Savings — The Office of Education has boasted in a house organ about reducing "the national debt by $169.45." This is the first royalty check from its program of copyrighting contract studies. What the office didn't mention is that it has spent tens of millions of tax dollars to pay for the studies, which will now be copyrighted. Not only does the contractor get a piece of the royalties, but he also collects greater profits from the original contracts.

Animal Cruelty — A dog peddler who was caught nearly three months ago with 107 uncaged dogs and nine cats in his stuffy, unventilated truck is still licensed by the Agriculture Department to ship animals across state lines. The department's Animal Health Division, which is charged with enforcing federal animal care laws, hasn't bothered to revoke the license of North Carolina dog dealer John G. Seward. This is typical, say insiders, of the department's lackadaisical enforcement.

Vote Rights Decisions Confusing

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — It should surprise no one that the American public is confused about the voting rights conferred by the Constitution. Our Supreme Court itself is a hotbed of confusion.

Rowan

Less than two weeks ago it ordered an end to the "at-large" election of state legislators in Hinds County, Miss. And this reporter applauded lustily at the thought that the court finally was striking down an old gerrymandering tactic used to keep state legislatures lily-white — or close to it.

But before my palms cooled from the vigorous clapping the court was back ruling that a similar gerrymander arrangement in Marion County, Ind., did not discriminate against minorities and was therefore Constitutional.

The court left us all puzzling over the mystery of why the Constitution seems to say one thing in the Jackson, Miss., area and something else around Indianapolis.

These are important rulings which will have great impact on urban areas, especially with regard to the feeling of minorities that they are getting a fair deal politically and can profitably work within the system.

Let's strip away the legal gobbledegook and look at the practical issues before the court.

Some stories have misled readers into assuming that blacks demanded a quota of seats in the legislature and that the court turned them down. There was no request for "reserved" seats for ghettos.

The fact is that migration patterns have made blacks a large percentage of most city populations (43 per cent in Detroit, 40 per cent in Jackson, 54 per cent in Newark). Under a system where legislative districts are arranged so each elects one lawmaker, some districts would be predominantly black and ordinarily would send a black person to the legislature.

To avoid substantial black representation, political shrewdies lump the heavily black inner city and the predominantly white suburbs into one big district and elect all the legislators "at large."

Under this "multi-member district" setup whites again hold numerical dominance and the only black who can get elected is one acceptable to a large number of whites.

This gimmick, along with denial of voting rights to blacks and other bits of trickery, kept Mississippi's legislature lily-white for generations. It may be that the pattern there has been so clearly discriminatory in its effect that even a "strict constructionist" court felt compelled to order single-member districts.

That the court could not see the inherent injustice of this gerrymander play in Indiana baffles this reporter. Perhaps it says something about the changing attitude of this court-in-transition.

It is wryly amusing that some people have proposed solving the problems of big-city education by placing inner city and suburban schools in one big district with children being assigned on an "at large" basis. This would put a lot of black faces in a lot of all-white suburban schools.

Legislatures and others in power are not much interested in throwing city and suburb together in this context. They see that as aiding blacks and inconveniencing whites.

How strange that they are so quick to mix city with suburbs when it creates a voting unit which effectively dilutes black political power.

On the voting front, it is another case of the political bosses sowing the seeds of injustice. Now the high tribunal is drifting back into the posture of gardener. Inevitably the entire nation will reap a bitter crop.

11th Win in 12 Games

Kansas City Takes Sixth From Bosox

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Royals are capitalizing on base thievery in their bid to overhaul the front running Oakland Athletics in the American League West.

The Royals stole four more bases Sunday and beat the Boston Red Sox 4-3 for a sweep of their three-game series and Kansas City's fifth consecutive victory and 11th in its last 12 games.

The victory, coupled with New York's 5-1 conquest of Oakland, left the Royals only five games behind the Athletics and two games back in the loss column.

Fred Patke, the miniature Kansas City shortstop, stole two bases, second and third in the same inning, to bring his total to 17, high in the AL. Amos Otis and Ted Savage got the other steals. Otis has 16 for the campaign.

"They steal 'em on their own," said Manager Bob Lemon. "Everybody is on his own. If they get the jump, they go. They're gone before I get a chance to give the steal sign."

Royals players have stolen 44 bases this season and have been trapped only 12 times.

Stolen bases set up two of the Royals' runs Sunday. Patek opened the first inning with a single, swiped second and third and scored on Ed Kirkpatrick's sacrifice fly.

Savage walked with nobody out in the fifth, moved to second on a Patek single, stole third and scored on Paul Schaal's single. Otis hit into a double play, scoring Patek with the run that tied the game 3-3.

The Royals got the winning run off starter Sonny Siebert, 9-3, in the sixth. Chuck Harrison beat out a roller with one out, and Joe Keough walked. Jerry May's single to left scored Harrison.

"We're winning because of a team effort," Lemon said. "That's the way you win... with the team effort. It's been one guy getting the big one in one game and another guy the next."

"We've had good pitching and one of the better defenses in baseball. This club has a different attitude this year. They feel like they can win every game."

The Red Sox scored in the first inning for the first time in 13 games and staked Siebert to a 2-0 lead. John Kennedy and Reggie Smith singled before Carl Yastrzemski walked to load the bases. Rico Petrocelli's single scored Kennedy and Smith.

Boston got its last run in the fourth with two out. Singles by Duane Josephson and Siebert and a walk to Doug Griffin filled the bases. Al Fitzmorris threw a wild pitch as his first gesture after relieving starter Paul Splittorff, and Josephson scored.

Siebert was denied his 10th victory and 100th of his career for the third straight game.

Kansas City has beaten Boston in all six of their meetings this season. This was the first in which the Royals had to come from behind.

"I like it the other way," Lemon said of the uphill decision. "I don't want to be a Whirlaway or make that Arnie Palmer charge."

In Boyer's Spot

Williams Makes Most Of New Opportunity

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer Earl Williams finally is getting his chance at third base. Well, better late than Early.

Williams, who couldn't crack the lineup when Cleve Boyer was with the Atlanta Braves, is making the best of his opportunity now that the veteran's gone.

Atlanta's swinging rookie infielder knocked in six runs with two homers Sunday, leading the Braves to a 9-0 shelling of the Houston Astros.

"You have days like that," said Williams, who always seems to play his best as a fill-in for Boyer, the slick third baseman released recently after a squabble with management.

When Boyer was sick earlier this year, Williams played third during a three-game series with Philadelphia and had a party at the plate with three homers among his seven units.

The high-tailing Pittsburgh Pirates ripped the slumping St. Louis Cardinals 8-4; the hot Los Angeles Dodgers clouted the Montreal Expos 7-1; the San Diego Padres nipped the Philadelphia Phillies 9-8; the Cincinnati Reds stopped the Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 11 innings and the New York Mets edged the San Francisco Giants 5-4 in 10.

It wasn't the first time Williams hit two homers in one game. He hit a pair in that Philadelphia series on April 17.

"The thing that stands out most in my mind is that the two homes came against big league pitching," said Williams of his two, three-run shots Sunday. "A guy like Don Wilson is a great pitcher. I never faced the other pitcher (Buddy Harris)."

Does Williams feel the pressure trying to fill Cleve's cleats?

"I don't try to emulate Boyer or to be his successor," he said.

Williams crashed his first circuit blast in the second inning off Wilson, a wallop into the left center field seats at the Astrodome following singles by Hal King and Mike Lum. He capped Atlanta's scoring with a three-run drive off Harris in the seventh.

In between the Williams' power display, Hank Aaron lashed homer No. 19 and the 611th of his career. Pat Jarvis fired a five-hitter for his second victory in a row after seven losses.

Richie Hebner's three-run homer capped a five-run uprising in the ninth to help Pittsburgh hammer St. Louis and maintain first place in the National League East by 2½ games over New York. The Pirates have won four in a row and 12 of 16 and St. Louis, which dropped 3½ games behind in third, has lost six straight and 10 of 13.

Bobby Valentine hit his first major league home run, a three-run job in the second inning, and added three more singles as Los Angeles took its 12th victory in 16 games and climbed within six games of front-running San Francisco in the West.

Valentine singled to start another three-run uprising in the fifth and drove in a run in the eighth with his final hit.

"It is the biggest day of my life and means a lot to me," said the Los Angeles youngster. "It's a day to smile. It also means winning and gaining some ground. I hope it means, too, that I'll be able to play more."

Pinch-hitter Bob Barton drove in two runs with an eighth-inning double to pull San Diego from behind. Barton's double off reliever Woody Fryman decided a slugger's battle with Philadelphia.

Lee May singled home the winning run in the 11th, sparking Cincinnati's success. May's game-winning hit off Ferguson Jenkins scored Pete Rose from second and handed the Cub ace his sixth loss in 16 decisions.

Porsches Run One, Two at Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — West German Porsches brought their third straight world sports car championship to a triumphant end here with a convincing 1-2 victory in the Le Mans 24 hour auto endurance race.

They have no current project to come back and defend their title next year in the new 3 liter formula, says racing director Rico Steinemann. He would not give a categoric "no" to a Porsche presence in the field next year, however.

Austrian lawyer Helmut Marko with Dutch shipping executive Gijs Van Lennep took victory in a Porsche 917 Sunday with Richard Attwood of Britain and Herbert Muller of Switzerland second in another 917.

But the delay of the howling

600 BHP 5 liter engines in European sports car racing is rapidly ending, and the Le Mans organizers — and apparently hundreds of thousands of fans — are delighted.

The new 3 liter limit promises a return to top sports car racing of a variety of firms providing battles which will end the one-make domination seen here in recent years.

Commandatore Enzo Ferrari has said he will end his cold shouldering of Le Mans next year. Other names of likely contenders include Italian Alfa Romeo, Matra-Simca from France, and the British Lola, Chevron and BRM teams. There is even talk of Japan's Toyota making a major entrance in the world competition next year.

The Porsche 917's were out of the lead for less than one hour of the 24 in the weekend's race. Mexico's Pedro Rodriguez, with Derek Bell, of Britain, led from the start until the car broke down just after the midway point. A Ferrari took a brief lead, broke down, and then it was the Porsche of Marko and Van Lennep which led to the finish.

The Le Mans win bids fair to put Marko into the succession of late world driving champion Jochen Rindt, his former classmate, killed in the Italian Grand Prix last year. A group of Austrian sponsors is willing to finance a Formula 1 drive for an Austrian pilot. The Le Mans win makes Marko the prime candidate and he said today the decision is expected by October.

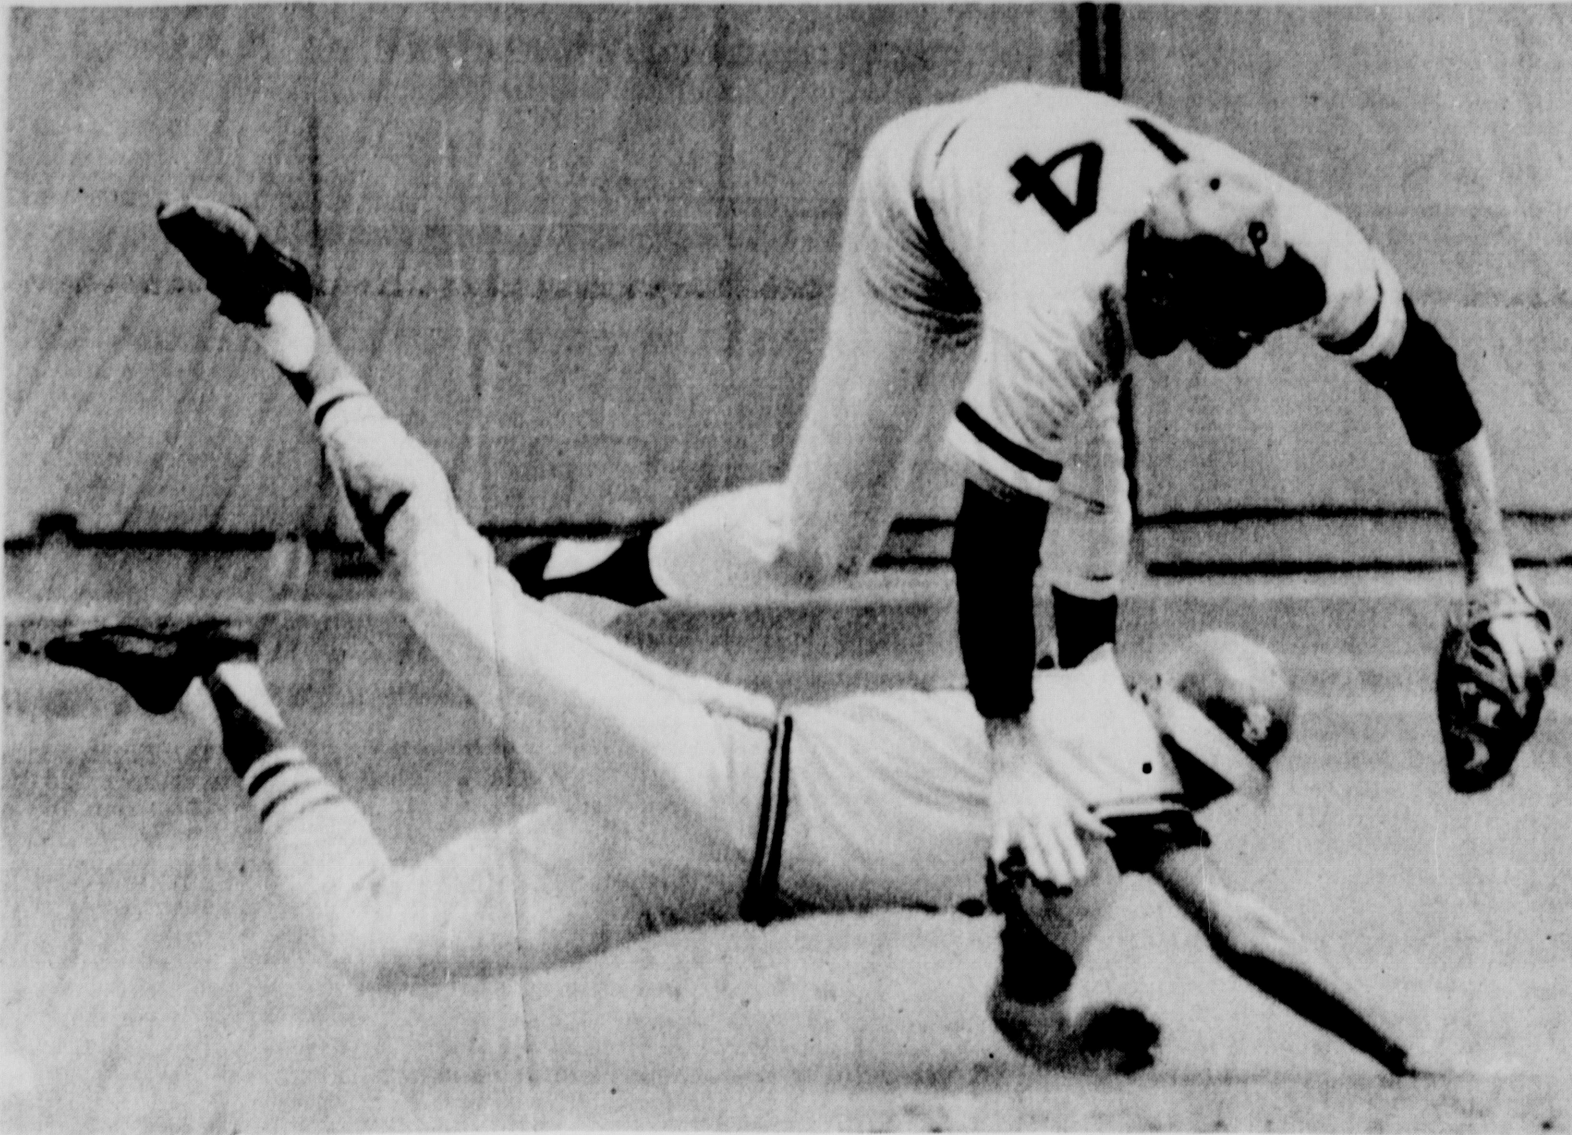

The early pace of the Porsches led to a distance record for the event of 3,315 miles at a record average speed of 138 miles per hour.

Long Race Ends

Helmut Marko of Austria and Gius Van Lennep of Holland get the checkered flag as they cross the finish line to win the 24-hour Le Mans Sports Car Race,

Alley Oops

Pittsburgh's Gene Alley (14) is spilled by sliding Dal Maxvill of the St. Louis Cardinals in the second inning of the Cards-Pirates' game, Sunday, in St. Louis. Maxvill was forced out at second on the play, but broke up a possible twin killing as pitcher Steve Carlton hit to second baseman Dave Case. The Pirates used a five-run ninth inning to shell the Cards, 8-4. (UPI)

Canonero II Not Sold—Yet

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Pedro Baptista, owner of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner, Canonero II, said Sunday the horse "has not yet been sold" but that there is an agreement between himself and Robert Glover of the King Ranch for the sale of the 3-year-old colt.

"I have not received any money for the horse yet," Baptista said, "but the offer is a million and a half dollars."

Shortly after his return from

New York where he saw Canonero finish fourth to Pass Catcher in the Belmont Stakes, thus failing to sweep the Triple Crown, Baptista told newsmen the horse was sold.

In clarifying this statement Baptista explained Sunday that "it has only been a gentlemen's arrangement between Glover and myself."

"As a matter of fact," Baptista said, "There have been better offers than that of Glover."

Pirate Rally Halts Cards

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner blasted a three-run homer in the top of the ninth Sunday to cap a five-run shelling of St. Louis left-hander Steve Carlton for an 8-4 victory as the hot Pirates swept a four-game series with the Cards.

The Pirates protected a 2½-game lead over the New York Mets in the National League East and dropped the Cardinals 3½ games behind.

"I had only one thing in mind and that was to just hit the ball and keep the rally going," said Hebner, whose swat came with teammates Roberto Clemente and Manny Sanguillen aboard.

Ahead of the blast, Hebner's sixth roundtripper, Clemente followed infield hits by Dave Cash and Gene Clines with a single tying the score at 4-4.

Willie Stargell's deep sacrifice fly scoring Clines signaled the departure of Carlton (10-3), and reliever Chuck Taylor was greeted by a Sanguillen single.

"I hit an off-speed curve," said Hebner, who had entered the game an inning earlier as a pinch-runner for Jose Pagan.

"I'd had a bad road trip. I think I had only about one hit in three games at Chicago and two here. The Pirates Manager (Danny Murtaugh) has got to play Pagan, because I'll be going off for two weeks in the military," added Hebner, who'll be lost to the club July 3-18.

Until the late uprising Carlton, seeking to become the NL's first 11-game winner, kept the Pirates in tow except for a two-run Sanguillen homer in the fourth and a run scoring on an error in the sixth.

The Cardinals watched Sanguillen's clout wipe out a 2-0 lead, then climbed ahead 4-3 in the bottom of the sixth on run-producing hits by Ted Sizemore and Luis Melendez.

It was the Cardinals' sixth loss in a row and 10th in 13 games.

Attempting to arrest the Cardinal skied in the opener of a three-game series against Cincinnati in Busch Stadium tonight will be left-hander Jerry Reuss (6-5).

Buck Gallup

Grabs Open

Class Race

Buck Gallup, Warrensburg, finished ahead of Lester Wiley of Whiteman Air Force Base Sunday to win the open division in the third Central Cycle Association race of the season.

Other winners included Carl Zimmerschied, Sedalia, in the 250cc division; Larry Schneider, Marshall, in the 200cc class and Pete White, Sedalia, in the 125cc division.

A number of bikes were entered in the 100cc class; in order to accommodate the bikes, two divisions were held. Rodney Turley and Tim Foster, both of Sedalia, tied for the top honors in one of the 100cc events, while Larry Dotson, Slater, was the winner of the other 100cc race.

Jeff Harver and Kittie Carver, both of Sedalia, won the mini-bike competition and the powder puff competition in that order.

The next race will be held Sunday at the new CCA track, north of Sedalia; it will be a moto-cross.

Sunday's Stars

HITTING — Earl Williams, Braves, drove in six runs with two home runs to lead Atlanta to a 9-0 romp over the Houston Astros.

PITCHING — Sam McDowell, Indians, retired the first 16 men and wound up with a two-hitter in pitching Cleveland past the Milwaukee Brewers 11-0.

Playoff Won By Weiskopf

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — "It's like shooting craps," Tom Weiskopf said of his playoff victory over Dale Douglass, Lee Trevino and South African Gary Player in the $150,000 Kemper Open Golf Tournament.

Weiskopf, who broke a three-year victory drought with his dramatic, come-from-behind triumph Sunday, was talking about the use of sudden-death to settle ties after 72 holes.

"If you've got more than one player, then sudden-death isn't really a major test. A lot of luck enters into it."

"If you're playing head to head with just one man, it may be a little more fair. I don't really like it. I'd only played in two before, and lost in both of those."

"It's a joke," said Player, one of the world's foremost players, who now has a poor, 3-10 record in playoffs. Trevino and Douglass fled the Quail Hollow Country Club course without comment.

All four had finished the regulation 72 holes at 277, 11 under par. Weiskopf was six strokes off the pace, being set by Douglass, when he started the drive that brought him the victory.

He reeled off birdies on the final four holes, sinking putts of 10, 10, 8 and 18 feet.

The lean and lanky Douglass, a winner in this tournament two years ago, was 13 under at that point and still had several holes to play.

But the 35-year-old veteran missed the green and missed a putt of about four feet on each of the last two holes, taking a bogey on each and dropping back into a tie.

Weiskopf, Trevino and Player—who had a fantastic four-putt on one green—all had final round 69s on the 7,278-yard, par 72 layout and Douglass had a 70.

They went to the 599-yard, par-five 15th hole to begin the playoff. All were on in three, with Weiskopf about eight feet away. The other three missed birdie attempts in the 12-20 foot range before Weiskopf lined it up, stepped away once, then stroked it home for his fifth birdie in a row.

The $30,000 first prize pushed his earnings for the year to $60,367.

Trevino, Player and Douglass

each picked up $11,600.

Two strokes back of them were Bob Lunn, the second and third-round leader who slipped to a final 73, George Johnson and Rod Funseth, tied at 279.

Arnold Palmer never really got it going, had a final 72 and finished in a tie for 12th at 281.

LPGA Tourney To Whitworth

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — Kathy Whitworth, once again the Ladies PGA champion, trained her sights today on one of the few titles which have eluded her in an illustrious career—the U.S. Open.

"I just wish the Open could be played here on this course," Miss Whitworth said with a smile Sunday after winning the LPGA championship at Pleasant Valley Country Club.

The 31-year-old Texan was only half joking. She won the LPGA title at Pleasant Valley in 1967, was beaten in a playoff the next year, and returned to the course to win the Patty Berg Classic in 1969.

After losing another shot at the LPGA title in a playoff with Shirley Englehorn here last year, Miss Whitworth bounced back to win the crown Sunday with a 72-hole score of four-under-par 288.

Miss Whitworth, who boosted her LPGA record earnings to more than $326,000 with a first-prize check of $7,950, carded a cautious one-over-par 74 in the final round, defeating young Kathy Ahern by four strokes.

Miss Whitworth took bogeys on the 14th, 15th and 16th greens in the final round as Sandra Haynie cut the tall veteran's lead to two strokes. However, Kathy sank a 15-foot putt for a birdie three on the tough 17th and went on to win easily.

Miss Ahern, 22, a former Western Junior Champion, finished with a 75 for a par-equaling 292. She collected $5,800 for her best showing since she turned pro five years ago.

Sandra Post Elliott, who defeated Miss Whitworth in an LPGA playoff in 1968, former New England champion Jane Blaylock and Miss Haynie tied for third at 293, earning $3,278 each. Mrs. Elliott and Miss Blaylock had final rounds of 72, while Miss Haynie took a double-bogey six on the 17th hole and had a 74.

Columbia Solidifies Hold in CMBJ Race

Columbia solidified their hold a bit on first place in the 1971 Central Missouri Ban Johnson League race by bombing Boonville in Sunday's activity, 16-2.

In other Sunday contests, Tipton took advantage of a host of Sedalia errors and defeated the locals, 11-5; Sunday's only other contest saw Centralia slip past New Franklin, 5-2.

Jefferson City was slated to play a league contest against Marshall in Marshall, but the game was postponed due to a softball tournament. It will be made up as part of a doubleheader on July 11.

Columbia, who won their second league decision against one defeat, used the skillful pitching of Ray Aslin and strong hitting to hang a 16-2 defeat on Boonville. Lavelle Collins was the losing pitcher.

Sedalia committed numerous errors that allowed ten unearned runs to score in their game with the Tipton Cardinals. The loss drops the Sedalians' record below the 500 mark in league play at 1-2.

Merlyn Bell was the winning pitcher in Centralia's 5-2 win over New Franklin.

One game is scheduled for Wednesday night; that finds Tipton at Centralia. Thursday night, Jefferson City travels to Columbia. Sedalia is at New Franklin and Boonville visits Marshall.

Climate Tough on Ryun

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Ryun is now a distance runner without a home town.

"It's certain I can't train in Eugene (Ore.) or anywhere near there," the Olympic veteran said after winning an 800-meter race at nearby Hayward Saturday in 1:49.3.

Ryun, world record holder in the mile and 880-yard run, moved his family from Kansas to Eugene early this year. He spoke of the advantage the West Coast climate would be for his comeback after an 18-month layoff from competition.

But in his first race in Eugene, a week ago Sunday, he finished 10th with a 4:07.6 in the mile. An attack of hay fever made it almost impossible for him to breathe.

Unfortunately, the national Amateur Athletic Association championships are scheduled in Eugene June 25-26.

"If the pollen count is high there the week of the nationals, I'll have no alternative but to withdraw," said Ryun, who has been staying with relatives here.

Wanamaker Nears Mark In Decathlon

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Rick Wanamaker, America's new decathlon champion, is within 11 points of the 8,000 level he'll probably need to have a chance against the Russians.

The 6-foot-8, 220-pound Wanamaker, a former Drake University basketball center, won the national AAU title here Saturday night by finishing with 7,989 points in the 10-event test. Veteran Russ Hodge was second with 7,958.

Wanamaker, 23, and Hodge will be the U.S. decathlon representatives in the July 2-3 meet at Berkeley, Calif., matching American and Russian teams with a World All-Star aggregation.

Russia's decathlon entries, Nikolay Avilov, 23, and Vladimir Scherbatykh, 26, have both surpassed 8,000 points.

Wanamaker, improving steadily since he started concentrating on track and field, was 304 points over his best previous total, which he posted at the Drake Relays this spring.

He has been drafted by Cleveland of the National Basketball Association but says he'll stick with the decathlon in hopes of going to the 1972 Olympics.

Drumtop, owned by James B. Mosely and ridden by Chuck Baltazar, came from last on the turn for home to beat Fort Marcy, winless in five starts this year, by 1 1/2 lengths in winning her sixth race in nine 1971 starts, her third straight stakes and the 10th stakes of her career. She carried 124 pounds and paid a winning mutuel of $8.80.

Advance Guard, ridden by Bill Shoemaker, carried 118 pounds to a head victory over Manta, 119, with Far To Reach, 111, third, in the 1 1/2-mile Inglewood timed in 1:48. The winner paid $7.20.

Stewart Pressures McLaren Team Early, But Forced Out

By BLOYS BRITT
 AP Auto Racing Writer

Though his first attempt was a failure, Scotland's Jackie Stewart still feels he will be able to carry out his role of Jack, the giant killer in the rich Can Am road racing series.

For a time Sunday, he gave the dominating Team McLaren driving duo of Denis Hulme and Peter Revson a taste of his magic in the series opener at Mosport Park near Bowmanville, Ont.

He placed his new Lola-Chevrolet in front of the 26 starters five laps into the race and was running away from the field when transmission problems sidelined him 12 laps later.

In the end, it was a replay of many recent Can Ams—New Zealander Hulme, the winner and the No. 2 McLaren, this one handled by the handsome Revson of New York, coming in second.

Hulme, who now has won 18 Can Am races and more than $500,000 since joining the circuit in 1967, was never challenged after Stewart left. He crossed the finish line only a second ahead of Revson, but the margin could have been greater. It was a comfortable 10 seconds at one point late in the race.

The two McLaren drivers took home $30,000 of the $75,000 purse—$17,600 for Hulme and $12,400 for Revson—and 35 valuable points toward the British-based team's fifth straight Can Am title.

Hulme's elapsed time for the 192.72 miles was one hour, 48 minutes, 15.2 seconds. The average speed of 109.033 miles per hour was about one mile off Dan Gurney's race record of 110.214 MPH last year.

Third place went to Lothar Motschenbacher of Newport Beach, Calif.; fourth to Bob Bondurant of Tustin, Calif., and fifth to Canadian John Cordts.

Public School Rec Program Now Underway

The summer recreation program, sponsored by the Sedalia public schools, began operation Monday. The program is designed to provide supervision and recreation leadership in plays and games during the summer.

Varied activities are offered including: Tennis, table tennis, track, basketball, volleyball, soccer, weight lifting and children's games. The program is open to all ages and is free of charge. Professional guidance and direction will be provided by three Smith-Cotton coaches.

Mr. Jim Dinsdale will be in charge of activities scheduled in the Smith-Cotton gymnasium. The gym program will operate from 9-12 a.m. and 4-8 p.m. each day Monday through Friday.

Mr. Larry York will conduct recreation activities in elementary school districts from 9-12 a.m. Mr. York will be at Centennial Park on Mondays, Horace Mann School on Tuesdays, Hubbard Park on Wednesdays, Heber Hunt School on Thursdays and Housel Park on Fridays. This schedule will be altered later in the summer to provide more service in those areas where attendance is greatest.

Jennie Jaynes Stadium will be open from 4-8 p.m. each evening under the supervision of Mr. York and Mr. Greg Cook.

All age groups are invited to take advantage of the activities and facilities provided by the Sedalia public schools.

Isaac of Catawba, N.C., in a Dodge, was just a bumper behind at the finish.

even Coach Bob Timmons admits the Jayhawks' musclemen are not enough.

Kansas won back-to-back NCAA indoor track championships when shot putter Karl Salb was a sophomore and junior, but has never won the outdoor with the husky Arkansan. Salb now is a senior and the Seattle meet is his last NCAA competition.

The Jayhawks' problem at Seattle — not enough talent on the track — was emphasized in the U.S. Track and Field Federation outdoor championships which concluded here Saturday.

Pacific Coast Track Club dethroned Kansas as team champion, with the Jayhawks a distant third — finishing behind Big Eight Conference rival Colorado.

Kansas got its only points in running events with third-place finishes in the intermediate hurdles and 440-yard relay, scoring all the rest of its 43 points in the field.

Pacific Coast won with 72 points and Colorado was next with 541-3. Tennessee finished fourth with 40 and Kansas State was fifth with 32.

"We're going to have to do something in some other events besides the weights," said Timmons. "And we're going to have to have everything going exactly right. But that's the way it is in a national meet."

George Daniels and Cliff Branch gave Colorado its second-place impetus here. The Buffaloes also figure to score at Seattle with Marcus Walker in the hurdles and Dave Busabarger in the pole vault.

Daniels and Branch both tied the USTFF 220 and 100-yard dash records of :20.2 and :09.2 to finish 1-2. Judges awarded Daniels first in both events. The pair also sparked Colorado to a record .39.4 clocking in the 440-yard relay — best time ever in the event for a Big Eight team.

Bill Elliott's record 7 feet, 1 inch high jump and Jay Elbel's victory in the quartermile paced Pacific Coast to the team title, and established the Long Beach entries as a strong threat in the upcoming AAU Nationals.

Men's records on the final day also came in the pole vault, which Jan Johnson of Alabama won in 17-3/4; the three-mile run, which Bowling Green's Sid Sink won in 13:23.4, and the mile relay, which Tennessee clipped off in 3:05 on the strength of Darwin Bond's .44.6 anchor lap.

When Salb, Steve Wilhelm an Bill Penny — Kansas' weight triumvirate — depart after the NCAA, the Jayhawks will mark the end of an era.

"They've really held the team together," Timmons said. "You have people up and down, but those guys were always there."

Campaign Donors Wedding Guests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The guest list for the White House wedding—so limited that no one from Congress was invited—included a number of rich campaign donors for President Nixon.

Among them: An oilman seeking a duty-free port, another oilman with a monopoly in Greece, a Los Angeles millionaire involved in past political controversy, and a donor so elusive his identity couldn't be traced.

They and six others put more than half-million dollars into Nixon's presidential race and key Republican campaigns last fall.

The donors who got one of the cherished 400 invitations to the Saturday wedding of Tricia Nixon to Edward F. Cox included such names as Elmer H. Bobst, New York drug executive; Thomas A. Pappas, Boston industrialist, and Patrick J. Frawley, conservative Los Angeles tycoon.

Left off the list were Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford, and the man who swore in Nixon as President, former Chief Justice Earl Warren.

The guest list's guide to who ranks as a personal friend of Richard Nixon:

—Bobst is honorary chairman of Warner-Lambert Co., and Nixon has referred to him as his own "honorary father." Bobst was one of the 10 largest donors to the 1968 Nixon campaigned at $63,000. Recently, the Justice Department declined to block a Warner-Lambert merger that would form the nation's third biggest drug company. Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell were once the firm's lawyers. The Federal Trade Commission has since started an antitrust case.

—Pappas, 71, is a Greek-born millionaire with friends in government on two sides of the Atlantic. His oil refinery has a monopoly in Northern Greece and he holds the Greek concession for another precious liquid, Coca-Cola. Last fall Pappas pumped at least $200,000 to GOP congressional candidates in eight states. He is now serving on Nixon's re-election committee.

—J. Willard Marriott, 70, is a longtime Republican backer who made his money in motels, restaurants and airline meals. He served as chairman for Nixon's inauguration. His firm later hired Nixon's brother, Donald, as vice president. When the brother signed the food contract with Greece's airline for Marriott's firm, Pappas threw a glittering dinner in Athens.

—John M. Shaheen of New York City heads an oil firm with plans to build a large refinery at tiny Machiasport, Maine, site of a proposed duty-free zone to permit cheaper imports of foreign oil. The duty-free plan is caught in a government snarl, but Shaheen says the refinery will be built anyway. His $3,000 check was one of the campaign donations that House GOP Leader Ford failed to report in a controversy earlier this year.

—Frawley, 48, made his first $10 million with Paper Mate Pen, now heads Eversharp-Shick, and ran Technicolor, Inc., until ousted a year ago. Technicolor was found last year to be paying then-Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., $20,000 a year as a consultant, plus paying half the rent on his Washington apartment. Frawley, born in Nicaragua, is a self-described conservative who has donated heavily to GOP causes.

—John A. Mulcahy, the mystery guest, is thought to be the donor who pumped $100,000 in a single week into Murphy's losing race last fall. The money was listed simply as from "J.A. Mulcahy." The White House gave his address in New York's rich Westchester County. But his name couldn't be found in reference files, and his phone is unlisted.

—Henry Salvatori Sr., 70, of Los Angeles, was Nixon's third largest campaign donor at $95,000. He piped nearly $50,000 more to GOP and Conservative candidates in Senate races in seven states last fall. An oil explorer, Salvatori was the finance chairman for another Republican presidential candidate, Barry M. Goldwater, in 1964.

—Robert H. Abplanalp is the man who invented the valve that produced the aerosol spray can. Another major GOP donor, Abplanalp owns a small island in the Bahamas where Nixon has been a personal guest occasionally.

—Another wedding guest, Richard M. Scaife, 38, of Pittsburgh, also made Nixon's top 10 list of donors in 1968 by giving more than $55,000. And he aided GOP candidates in at least five states last fall. The "M" in his name is for Mellon. A banker, he helps run much of the vast Mellon business empire.

—DeWitt Wallace, 80, Mount Kosco, N.Y., is co-chairman with his wife of Reader's Digest. They gave almost $50,000 for Nixon's race and have long been considered friends of the Nixon family. Another donor, Reader's Digest president Hobart D. Lewis, also was a wedding guest.

Contributions from these 10 Nixon friends added up to more than $550,000 for the presidential campaign and key Republican races last fall.

Also on the wedding guest list were Nixon pal Charles "Bebe" Rebozo; rubber tycoon Leonard K. Firestone of Los Angeles; former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell of New York, an old political mentor; and a number of friends from Nixon's home state of California.

The guest list included IBM chairman Thomas J. Watson Jr., a big Democratic donor who has made at least one large contribution to presidential hopeful Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

His brother, Arthur K. Watson, is a major GOP donor who was named by Nixon as ambassador to France. But he was not one of the two ambassadors to get an invitation to the wedding.

Whether Thomas Watson was a guest of the bride's family or the groom was not noted.

International Bank Firm Gives Inflation Warning

Laird Blasts Deadline

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said Sunday that if the United States should set a date for a full withdrawal from Vietnam it would "abandon all hope for the negotiations in Paris." Laird said peace "must be negotiated in Paris, not in Congress, not in newspaper columns" by setting withdrawal deadlines. (UPI)

BASEL, Switzerland (AP) — The Bank for International Settlements warned the Western world's governments today that they must fight inflation by curbing "leaping wages" despite the unpopularity of such measures.

In its annual report, the clearing house for the West's central banks said recent events have shown "more strikingly than ever before that wage policy is an instrument which should be more fully exploited."

"It is a challenge to political leadership which cannot be brushed aside," said the 194-page report signed by the bank's new French general manager, Rene Larre. Labor legislation may have to be strengthened, the influence of government may need to be used more effectively, and public opinion must be brought to see the realities of the problem.

"In particular, governments cannot expect success if they keep their hands off distasteful policy actions and leave the whole job to central bank measures."

"Managing the money supply is a vital instrument of policy but it is not a panacea — particularly when the root of inflation is leaping wages."

The report said wage increases last year were bigger and more widespread than ever before, and in a few countries they were "beyond reason."

Italy was the leader with an average wage increase of 21 per cent. Thought comparable data were lacking for the United States, there was a 6.3 per cent rise in average earnings, which the bank termed "a very high figure."

The bank said the squeeze on profits, with its related curtailment of investments for plants and equipment, was a "particularly adverse effect" of inflation in the West.

"It is apparent that if this problem persists, as it threatens to do, continuation of the productivity gains and the huge expansion of output of the last 20 years will be put in jeopardy," the report said.

The bank said recent development of investments for plants and equipment, was a "particularly adverse effect" of inflation in the West.

The Western world will have to "face the fact of the persistently large U.S. balance of payments deficit" influencing the international monetary system and prompting growing demands for controls of international trade and payments, the report said.

The recent crisis, which left the Deutschmark and the guilden floating, was an admitted setback to continued progress in the Common Market. Other difficulties of this kind seem likely to arise. The continuous piling up of official short-term debt by the United States and the contention that other currencies rather than the dollar have the main responsibility for the adjustment process can hardly be the last word on the subject."

Recover Drowning Victims

CHESTER, Ill. (AP) — The bodies of two young girls presumed to have drowned in the Mississippi River still are missing but the bodies of three companions were recovered.

Sheriff Ralph C. Bollinger said searchers in boats pulled the bodies of Norma Clark, 11; her sister Cindy, 9, and Robin Phillips, 11, from the river before noon Sunday.

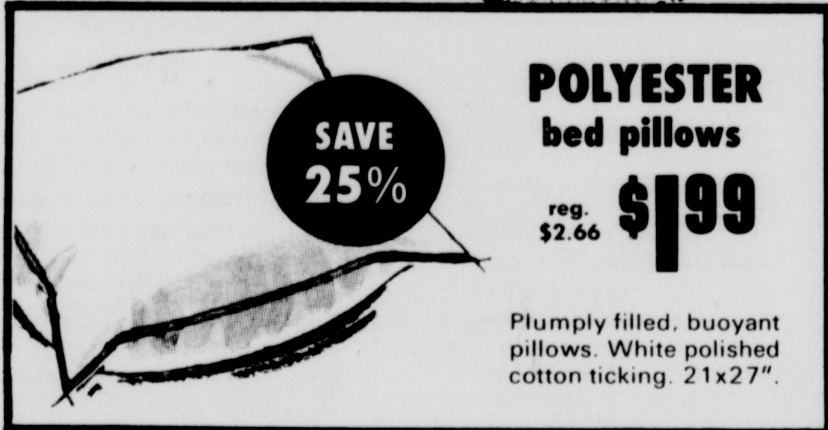

Two of the bodies were found downstream from where a car plunged off a steeply graded city street into the river on Friday, Bollinger said.

The other, he said, was found by boaters away from shore but closer to the scene of the accident.

Recovery of the bodies brought to five the number of confirmed drownings among the 10 persons in the car. Authorities speculated that its brakes failed.

Mrs. Charles Clark, driver of the car, was rescued. So were Tammy Canada, 11, and Donna Phillips, 9. Found dead in the car when it was pulled from the river Friday night were Tammy Clark, 6, and Debby Canada, 12.

A state police airplane joined boaters and a shore patrol in continuing the search for the bodies of Becky Clark, 10, and Becky Roberts, 6, until darkness Sunday.
